SAIGON (AP) — More than 22,000 Americans have died in combat in the Indochina war since the Paris peace talks started exactly three years ago, a compilation of official U.S. casualty reports showed today.

Supplies Go To Survivors Of Earthquake

BURDUR, Turkey (AP) — Army helicopters carried medicine and supplies to stricken mountain villages in southwest Turkey today as operations continued to relieve the victims of Wednesday's earthquake.

Turkish Prime Minister Nihat Erim flew from Ankara to this town of 30,000 to inspect the relief work.

"May Allah spare you from more pain," Erim told a grim crowd here. "We will spare no effort to rebuild."

The quake destroyed or damaged three-quarters of the buildings in Burdur, officials said, and wrecked dozens of surrounding villages.

The official death toll stood at 54 today but officials fear it may rise when contact is made with remote villages.

Officials said the timing of the quake was a major factor in the low death toll. Most of the villagers were working in their fields and children were in school, the solest building in town, Wednesday morning.

Burdur is opium growing country about 225 miles southwest of Ankara.

The quake was the sixth in a series that have rocked Turkey's Anatolian fault, killing nearly 4,000 persons since 1966.

Wednesday's quake registered eight on the Richter scale, according to the Kandili Observatory in Istanbul, making it a major earthquake.

The total included 34 deaths announced today by the U.S. Command in its casualty summary, for last week. It was the lowest weekly figure in three months.

This brought the three-year total to 22,170 as of midnight last Saturday, almost half of the 45,121 American battle deaths for the more than 10 years that the United States has been involved in the Vietnam conflict.

Since Saturday midnight, there have been other U.S. servicemen killed, but these figures will not be announced until next week's casualty summary.

Saigon Troops

A compilation of South Vietnamese casualties on the third anniversary of the Paris talks showed 51,722 Saigon troops have been killed since the talks began May 13, 1968.

In the same period, the allies claim they killed 394,659 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops.

The U.S. Command's report of 34 deaths last week was the lowest since the first week of February when 24 Americans died in action.

The command said 221 Americans were wounded last week, a sharp drop from the 592 reported wounded in the previous week and the lowest figure in three weeks.

Only four deaths were listed last week from non-hostile causes such as accidents and illness, an unusually small number compared with the recent average of about 20 such deaths each week.

Latest Figures

The latest figures brought the U.S. totals for the war—from Jan. 1, 1961—to 45,121 combat deaths, 299,102 wounded in action and 9,510 deaths from non-hostile causes.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 360 government troops killed and 882 wounded last week, both well below the 492 killed and 1,102 wounded a week earlier.

Year One-Third Over, Economy Still Sags

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a third of the year gone, the Nixon administration is still looking for solid evidence of a broad economic upsurge that will drive down high unemployment and slow inflation further.

Despite President Nixon's pledge that 1971 will be a good year, unemployment has hovered around the 6 per cent rate all year. Last month, the jobless rate edged up to 6.1 per cent.

Although consumer price increases slowed perceptibly in the first few months of the year, wholesale prices, which usually presage future cost-of-living increases, accelerated in April.

And, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday, the rise in national personal income slackened in April, supplying new evidence the economic pace is failing to match the administration's forecasts.

April Rise

The personal income advance was $4.5 billion, down from the $6.2 billion increase recorded in February. The April rise was about the average monthly gain in 1970, a year in which the economy went through what

Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns has called a recession. The evidence suggests, according to some economic analysts, that the expansion Nixon is seeking is not moving fast enough to reduce unemployment and inflation to acceptable levels.

The President has pledged to cut unemployment to 4.5 per cent and inflation, now running above 5 per cent, to 3 per cent by the middle of 1972.

Money Policies

To achieve these goals, he has promised to stimulate the economy with stepped-up federal spending and easier money policies. If these fail to work, Nixon has said he will consider tax cuts later in the year to provide further stimulation.

There was an economic rebound from January through March but it can be traced to a catchup in business activity after settlement of the General Motors' strike.

The administration also said it signaled the beginning of a wider economic expansion. It pointed to increases in March retail sales and housing starts as evidence the consumer is starting to spend more.

But so far, the expansion has not been strong enough to make a dent in the unemployment rate, which Nixon's economic officials say should be falling below 5 per cent by the end of the year.

Nixon has called for a 9 per cent increase in economic output this year, projecting that Gross National Product, output of the nation's goods and services, will reach $1,065 trillion this year.

The GNP advanced by $28.5 billion during the first quarter but the strong gain still fell short of the administration's forecasts. Almost two-thirds of the boost was traced to the resumption of G.M. automobile production.

It will be July before the next GNP report is announced and conclusive figures available on the pace of the recovery.

But the latest figures indicate that the recovery is not as broad-based as the administration would like. In the latest reading, for example, business investment in plant and equipment was lackluster.

But the administration says it will be patient, confident that the economic pace will quicken. "Steady as you go," Budget Director George P. Shultz said recently in describing the administration's attitude on the recovery.

Administration economists also caution against drawing any conclusions about the economy on the basis of one month of statistics.

Turnabout Gives SST 2nd Chance

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American supersonic transport (SST) program, given a new chance for life by a close House vote, may need $500 million to $1 billion to get going again, in the view of William M. Allen, chairman of the board of the Boeing Co.

Allen also told a Washington news conference today that there would be a delay of about a year in the production program, over what had been planned initially.

Allen emphasized that he was very much in favor of continuation of the SST program, but said realities must be faced.

He said Boeing has had to terminate its subcontracts and disperse a large part of the team that has been working on the airplane.

Boeing Commitment

Boeing has committed itself already as far as it can go, or really farther than would be justified, he said.

"We have a lot of money in the program, a lot more than we can ever get back by cancellation of contracts," he said.

The Senate Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana, said he will not bring the bill containing the SST funds before the Senate until the draft extension debate is completed—probably sometime in June—unless an agreement can be reached "to handle it in a limited time."

Turning a congressional death warrant inside out, House backers of federal subsidies for the faster-than-sound, passenger plane engineered a 201-197 loophole victory Wednesday hailed by President Nixon and denounced by critics as a "travesty of the legislative process."

Spokesmen for the aerospace contractors that have built and fought for the SST project were quick to say any renewal of the work would be expensive, that all contracts would have to be renegotiated and that in their view the goal would have to be changed from mere prototype development to actual SST commercial production.

Proxmire Strategy

"Our strategy will be to try and beat it, beat it up and down," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. He declared to newsmen he will use any tactic under the Senate rules to kill the project—not ruling out talking it to death.

He said the original objections still stand: the SST is too costly, something that should be left to private industry is not practical and threatens the environment.

"Minds have been changed in the last two months," said Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who has fought to keep alive the SST, which was being built in his state.

His homestate colleague, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, also a Democrat, said these factors were the mind changers: A strong reaction across the nation to rising unemployment, the current dollar crisis overseas and the continued effort of the British-French builders of the Concorde SST.

Thought Dead

The issue, thought dead earlier in the year following defeats on both congressional chambers, was raised again when House SST backers, in an amendment to a supplemental appropriations bill, rewrote a section providing $85 million to terminate SST contracts. Their new language earmarked the House's 215-204 anti-SST vote money to restart the program.

The decision, reversing the eight weeks ago, tossed the controversy back to the Senate, giving another turn to a Capitol Hill saga in which the SST already has had far many more perils than the fabled Pauline.

The Senate last March nailed down the earlier House decision in a 51-46 vote.

The initial reaction from all sides was that the new Senate vote whenever it can be arranged, will be far closer, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called it nip and tuck. Jackson said it was fifty-fifty. Proxmire said "Frankly, we don't know if we have the votes or not."

Spokesmen for the Boeing Corp. and General Electric, the two prime SST contractors under now canceled contracts, said the whole situation will have to be rethought.

"Any proposal to go forward on an SST program would involve very substantial financial commitments beyond $85 million," a Boeing spokesman said.

A new start and a new contract should consider not only completion of two prototypes "but the construction of production aircraft as well," the spokesman said.

Proxmire Lambasts Loan to Lockheed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proposal to grant $250 million in federal loan guarantees to the tottering Lockheed Aircraft Corp. "is bad economics, bad public policy and bad news for the American taxpayer," says Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Proxmire, one of the most powerful foes of government spending policies, commented in advance of introduction today of an administration bill providing the guarantees. He challenged the White House to produce a "single reputable economist in support of the proposed bailout."

"The argument that it is necessary to bail out Lockheed in order to prevent widespread unemployment and general economic collapse has no merit," the senator added in a prepared statement.

Postal Changes Met Skeptically

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional overseers of the Postal Service say they will wait for results before passing judgment on the sweeping reorganization of the mails announced by Postmaster Gen. Winton M. Blount.

The Postal Service chief said Wednesday the current 15 regional mail centers will be cut to five, which will have more centralized authority, and there will be a manpower reduction.

Though his announcement said nothing of how many employees would be affected, congressional sources said 3,500 older, white collar workers would be encouraged to retire.

Blount did say none of 640,000 postal workers protected by unions would be affected. That means the local mailman won't change.

Time Will Tell

"Only time will tell if the system will improve," said Rep. David Henderson, D-N.C., the No. 2 Democrat on the House Postal Committee. "It would seem to be in keeping with what Gen. Blount has said he had in mind... a real centralization of authority."

Henderson expressed reservations about cutting the regional centers but he said he would not challenge the change "even though there is already a great deal of dissatisfaction in the Congress with the deterioration in service."

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of the Senate Postal Committee, said he would lodge no protest against the reorganization, but take a look at how it works.

McGee said he was concerned with the "abolition of the white collar workers and what he will do with the expertise that's left."

Blount's plan calls for new regional centers in New York, Philadelphia, Memphis, Chicago and San Francisco. Centers in Boston, Washington D.C., Atlanta, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Wichita, Minneapolis, Dallas, Denver and Seattle would be eliminated.

One congressional source predicted the effect of the changes would be a massive sales campaign to encourage greater use of postal services as a step in reversing a 20-year record of deficits.

The postal reorganization bill signed by President Nixon last Fall provides a subsidy until 1984.

Sale Price Items

Have Advertised Goods, Stores Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has ruled a grocery store advertising sales must have enough goods on hand to meet reasonable demand at the special price.

A grocery chain may not use such disclaimers as "not all items available in all stores" to get around the ruling, the FTC held Wednesday. And providing "rain checks" for later use at sale prices will not meet the test.

The regulation is effective July 12.

The commission said in the future it plans to apply the same principles to other advertised commodities, apparently meaning the ruling will be extended to such businesses as department, drug and hardware stores.

"What we're looking for," said Robert Pitofsky, director of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection, "is a store that systematically advertises a product and then consistently doesn't have the product on the shelves at the advertised price."

Unfair Practices

Failure to abide by the new rule could be punishable as an unfair trade practice and subject the offender to civil penalties.

The ruling arises from a 1967-68 study of 137 stores operated by 10 grocery chains in San Francisco and Washington.

Eleven per cent of advertised items were not available in most stores, the study showed, and only eight of the 137 outlets checked had every advertised item.

Fewer advertised products were available in low-income areas than in wealthier sections. And nearly 10 per cent of the specials were marked at prices above those in the sales advertisements.

The FTC said the new rule excuses a retailer if demand for advertised specials exceeds reasonable expectations, or if he can prove the stock was unavailable through no fault of his own.

The commission noted 282,300 U.S. retail grocery stores sold $76 billion worth of food in 1968. "There exists a broad public interest in the advertising and marketing practices of the retail food industry, particularly when that industry has been the subject of numerous allegations of unfair and anticompetitive practices," the FTC said.

Cancer an Elusive Target

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — The time has come for an all-out campaign to cure cancer, say government leaders.
President Nixon proposes just such an effort, and he spelled out objectives and some approaches on Tuesday. They are very similar to those in a bill already introduced in the Senate by Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.
Cancer specialists applauded the purpose. But they sound some notes of caution.
Curing cancer cannot be accomplished quickly with the kind of powerful concentration of money and talent that produced the A-bomb, or which sent men safely to the moon and back.
Those were marvelous achievements, but mostly engineering ventures, successfully using basic knowledge that was already available. Einstein and others had discovered what might happen when an atom was split. Galileo, Newton and others had produced the basic facts about gravity, space, planetary motions, and other principles for going to the moon.

But that kind of fundamental knowledge does not yet exist for either curing or preventing most human cancers.
Perhaps only 50 to 60 per cent of the basic knowledge required for full control of cancer exists at this time, says a spokesman for the American Cancer Society.
Must Go On
When the rest may be found, and by whose trained minds, can't be predicted. But, he says, that's no reason not to go looking for it more intensively and extensively, and to apply existing knowledge more intensively and efficiently to treat cancer patients, or to prevent cancers.
But unless the difficulties of finding the answers are appreciated, there's danger of raising false hopes.
"You can't go down to the corner drug store and buy a breakthrough in cancer research," says one medical school dean. Dr. Arthur Richardson of Emory University. Needed is "unrestricted money for basic research, not just development money."

Viruses cause cancers in animals. But it's not yet proved that viruses cause human cancers. If they do, then a particular vaccine might be developed, but it might work against only one form of cancer, such as cancer of the breast, or leukemia.
Perhaps, says an official of the National Cancer Institute, 100 vaccines or treatments might be required to control the broad variety of human cancers. Developing vaccines could take some time. Even after it had been established that only three types of virus cause human polio, it still took some years to develop the Salk polio vaccine, and to prove that it worked, and worked safely.
Chemicals Too
Look to another aspect—that chemicals can cause cancers.

Recipients to be Cut Off New Food Stamp Plans Brings Many Complaints

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department insists its proposed regulations to implement the 1970 Food Stamp Reform Act will make more persons eligible, as congressional sponsors intended.
The department has received 124 letters of protest, however, many echoing congressional complaints that a uniform standard of income eligibility would remove a large number of welfare recipients now eligible to buy food stamps under state standards.
Richard Lyng, assistant secretary of agriculture, conceded 350,000 persons now eligible for stamps, mostly in one and two-person households, would be dropped and another 1.75 million persons in households approaching the maximum monthly income limit would receive reduced benefits.
At the same time, Lyng estimated 17 million persons in states with lower income ceilings would become eligible.
About 10.6 million persons now receive food stamps.
Under the new regulations, subject to revision after review of public comments, a family of four with combined total income up to $360 a month would be eligible.
Only Alaska, New Jersey and New York have lower cut-off levels.
The proposed income scale, however, is more restrictive on one and two-person households. For example, California now cuts off one person at $185 a month income and two persons at $240. The proposed national maximum is $160 and $210, respectively.
The definition of a household also is being challenged in a letter from the six Republican members of the special Senate Nutrition Committee. They complained the Agriculture Department misinterpreted a provision of the law admittedly designed to disqualify so-called hippie communes.

Department officials say the regulation follows the law's definition of a household as "a group of related individuals."
The senators quoted Allen J. Ellender, D-La., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, as saying the provision was "designed to exclude households consisting of unrelated individuals under the age of 60, such as hippie communes."
They said the regulation would exclude families "who might have taken in a friend."
Signing the letter were Sens. Charles H. Percy, Illinois; Marlow W. Cook, Kentucky; Robert J. Dole, Kansas; Henry L. Bellmon, Oklahoma; Richard S. Schweiker, Pennsylvania, and Robert Taft Jr., Ohio.
Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., chairman of the nutrition committee, invited Lyng to a hearing on the proposed regulations Friday.

Enemy Is Repulsed

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces repulsed the first two major counterattacks in their month-long A Shau Valley campaign, claimed 200 North Vietnamese killed with the help of U.S. aircraft, and smashed a regimental-size base camp and arms factory.
Ninety South Vietnamese marines were reported killed or wounded in the two enemy attacks.
Some 400 North Vietnamese made the first assault at 4 a.m. Wednesday on the night camp of a 500-man South Vietnamese marine battalion in mountainous terrain on the eastern border of the 30-mile-long valley. Field reports said six marines were killed and 48 were wounded.
A second assault on the marines came at 2:30 p.m., with hundreds of North Vietnamese moving behind the cover of an artillery barrage. But this brought the North Vietnamese into the open in daylight, and American B52, fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships pounded them. Three of the B52s dropped 90 tons of bombs on concentrations of the enemy.
36 Casualties
Another 36 marines were reported killed or wounded in the second battle. Spokesmen said there were U.S. advisers with the battalion, but it was not known if any of them were casualties.
The 200 North Vietnamese reported killed in the two fights were nearly double the 117 enemy casualties reported during the previous 28 days of the A Shau Valley operation.
Just to the north of the valley, South Vietnamese infantrymen destroyed a base camp containing an arms shop and 100 small structures with underground bunkers, headquarters said. The Saigon forces found one anti-aircraft machine gun, two AK47 rifles, two cases of anti-aircraft machine gun ammunition, 10 cases of AK47 ammunition, 60 B40 rockets and 200 uniforms.
There were no indications that the South Vietnamese met any resistance. They found the bodies of five enemy soldiers who apparently were killed earlier by air and artillery strikes.
A mile away, other South Vietnamese troops destroyed 10 bunkers and found another munitions cache that included five cases of plastic explosives, 50 B40 rockets and 10 antitank mines.
The A Shau valley is 375 miles northeast of Saigon on the Lao-tian border and is the gateway to the populous coastal lowlands, including the cities of Hue and Da Nang. It is a major staging area and transshipment point for North Vietnamese troops and supplies.

Vital Gasoline Pipeline Expanded by Enemy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese are expanding a vital gasoline pipeline feeding their supply of trucks through Laos, military sources report.
The Communists are said to be building a new pipeline leg from the port city of Quang Khe toward the Bankrai Pass opening into the Ho Chi Minh Trail corridor.
U.S. officials say the new section, paralleling Route 137, will give the North Vietnamese a third main outlet for pumping truck fuel south. The other two go through the Mu Gia Pass and across the Laotian border north-west of the demilitarized zone.
The segment is expected to be finished in time for the next big Communist supply push in the fall.
The pipeline expansion is one of a number of signs North Vietnam is making strong efforts to keep open, and improve, its remaining supply channel to Communist forces in South Vietnam and Cambodia.
U.S. intelligence estimates as many as 70,000 North Vietnamese troops are staying in the Laotian panhandle during the rainy season, now setting in. U.S. authorities said South Vietnamese troops severed the pipeline at various places during the six-week invasion against the Ho Chi Minh trail last February and March.

The pipe is designed for easy and quick repair. Each 19-foot section, if ruptured, can be disconnected and replaced in a few minutes, U.S. experts say.
The four-inch-diameter pipe, though mostly above ground, is a tough target for U.S. bombers. The North Vietnamese apparently realize permanent pumping stations would make the line vulnerable to air attacks. So they use portable, truck-mounted pumps. The system is believed capable of carrying up to 350,000 gallons a day, but American military authorities doubt it is operated at full capacity.
In effect, the North Vietnamese operate gas stations along the Ho Chi Minh trail where they tap into the pipeline to refuel their trucks. At the low end of the line, 55-gallon drums are filled with gasoline for trucks still further southward.

Rogers Visits the Middle East

In spite of President Nixon's protests to the contrary, Secretary of State William Rogers seems to have had little to say or to have had little influence in our Vietnam dilemma. But he has been very active in trying to prevent a renewed outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East and in guiding American policies that hopefully could lead to a settlement in that volatile area.

Mr. Rogers' recent trip to most of the Arab nations and to Israel has been suggested as a filler for the vacuum in efforts to find a settlement, prompted by the refusal of both sides to deal realistically with the United Nations mediator, Gunnar Jarring, who finally returned to his home in Sweden. But the visits with the Arab and Israeli leaders also were aimed at finding some international security arrangement for maintaining the tenuous cease-fire that now exists.

Whether there can be a settlement in the Middle East depends primarily upon the willingness of the antagonists to work for it — their sincere desire to have peace even if only because of the threats to both sides of losing out completely. At this time the Arab nations seem more inclined in this direction than do the Israelis. But the latter must come to realize that, while they may still be militarily superior to the Arabs, they are many times outnumbered and continued Russian military assistance to Egypt could shift the scales.

Probably, to no less a degree, a successful peace agreement depends upon the desire in both the West, particularly the United States, and the Soviet Union for an end to hostilities. Mr. Rogers' visit demonstrates the concern in Washington for peace but the United States has not as yet brought any real pressure to bear upon Israel to make concessions. The dangers of a direct confrontation with Russia must be kept in mind when matters such as withholding military aid to Israel and the permission to allow Israel bonds to be sold tax free in this country come up. It may eventually become necessary to exert some pressure to overcome both the understandable Israeli fear of the Arab nations and the always delicate matter of national face-saving.

The Soviet Union also is something of a dilemma. Its leaders want to expand their influence in the Middle East and backing the Arabs is one step in that direction. But there is a very real danger that if some sort of a temporary agreement is not reached, such as regulations on opening the Suez Canal,

Court Rules on the Death Penalty

The trend of the United States Supreme Court to give more emphasis to state laws and to interpret the role of the Bill of Rights in a narrow way was once more demonstrated in its 6 to 3 decision that jury decisions as to the death penalty in states which authorize it for capital crimes are not prescribed by the Constitution.

Justice John Harlan, delivering the decision for the majority, said that "our function is not to impose on the states ex cathedra what might seem to us a better system for dealing with capital cases. Rather it is to decide whether the federal Constitution prescribes the present procedures of these states in such cases . . . the states are entitled to assume that jurors confronted with the truly awesome responsibility of decreeing death for a fellow human will act with due regard for the consequences of their decision."

In a second part of the decision, the high court ruled that there was no need to separate the guilt-or-innocence part of a trial from the sentencing power. The argument was that an accused might hesitate to give evidence that might incriminate him in the first part but after conviction such evidence might serve to mitigate the penalty.

The court made no effort to answer the continuing question as to whether the death penalty itself might be unconstitutional as being "cruel and unusual punishment" banned in the Bill of Rights. As it did in its decision upholding referendum decisions prohibiting housing projects in a com-

Looking Backward

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for May 20, 1871.
The Rt. Rev. W. E. Armitage, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese, officiated at the ordination of the Rev. J. L. Steele Sunday morning last. The Bishop preached from the text — "Save thyself and the people that hear thee" — a sermon of a superior high order and most eloquently appropriate. His charge to Mr. Steele was kindly affectionate and touchingly feeling. Bishop Armitage evidently is a Western man in force of character and independence. He had two appointments to fill last Sunday, the morning one in Appleton and the other at Green Bay in the evening. Detained until half-past 1 o'clock in Appleton, he was offered a choice of horse and carriage, but wisely chose a more expeditious and certain mode of travel by railway handcar. A comfortable seat was fitted up on one of these and, conducted by J. W. Hall,

Gov. Reagan Didn't Pay Taxes Because He Had No Net Income

By William F. Buckley, Jr.
The reports from California are that Governor Ronald Reagan is gravely wounded by the admission that he did not pay any state taxes last year. California is so straitened economically that the idea of a millionaire like Governor Reagan not paying taxes, while bakers and candlestick makers are required to do so, has outraged the public conscience.

Now the thing of it is this: if the great California public is in fact outraged by such a datum, then the obligation of the thoughtful members of the California community, whether they are Republicans or Democrats, is clearly to instruct the public in the facts of life. The facts of life are that one pays taxes according to the noise being made, that there are those who seek out such a situation. Why? If Reagan had had no losses, he'd have paid, say, $50,000 in taxes; but he would have been left with $50,000. How is that situation not to be preferred?

Now About Depreciation
Or, suppose he had taken depreciation on real estate, in the amount of $100,000 — as provided by the law. Suppose, even, that the depreciation was in excess of the actual depreciation as valued by the marketplace? a) The depreciation schedules are fixed by the government, not by Reagan; b) what helps you this year in terms of exaggerated depreciation, will hurt you next year, the depreciation having been expended. It is so with the write-offs in oil and cattle.

Finally there is the matter of the governor's house. Here is how it was described in the New York Times. "(Gov. Reagan) lives in a house for which the state pays $15,000 rental. It is not clear whether he includes the house rental as income, but the rules for other people would require that they include it, tax accountants said." Said tax accountants should be led back to school, because they are very ignorant, and they are deceiving the public, courtesy of the Times. The law says that the rental value of a residence which is maintained for the convenience of an employer is specifically not taxable. Ronald Reagan lives in Sacramento because the law says that governors of the state of California must live in Sacramento: and said governors are expected to maintain a residence suitable for entertaining assemblymen and senators and newspaper reporters who, when they drink the booze and eat the minced ham, will not torment themselves with the question whether they should pay taxes on the bounty they are receiving from the taxpayers of California. Ronald Reagan has a great big unused house in Los Angeles, which is where he lives and will go back to one of these days, when he is through doing what he can for the state of California, and exposing himself to the calumny of people whose income, in many cases, depends on their capacity for demagoguery.

He's Less Well Off
Somebody, giving pause to the demagogic imperative to tirade against wealthy men, should point out that if a rich man pays no taxes "because of business reverses," that means that he is — net — less well off than he would have been if he had paid taxes.

Take Governor Reagan. I know nothing of his personal finances, and would go out of my way not to find out about them; but, after all, tax laws deal with hypotheses. Let us suppose that in addition to his $44,000 salary from the state of California, he has an income from investments of $55,000 — so that we can deal in round figures. All right, suppose that during the previous tax year he put $100,000 into a personally owned business, or into a partnership. Suppose then that that business failed, or that if it was a partnership, his losses in the partnership that failed, were $100,000. Result: his net take during that year was: income, $100,000. Loss, $100,000. Are the people of California suggesting that someone in such a situation should pay taxes? Taxes are supposed to be paid on net income.

And one would think, from

Wisconsin Report
Basic Success Rule In Politics Is to Occupy Public Office

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON — In an interview published in one of the state newspapers recently, a young politician remarked that when he decided to attempt a career in politics he

This is the origin of the clumsy phrases that too often become weapons of criticism, such as "conservative Democrat" or "liberal Republican." The phrases often describe men who would have chosen the Republican and the Democratic tickets, respectively, if they had felt they could win on the other side of the ballot.

The first rule of political life is to occupy office. There are classical routes to political careers, district attorney, the legislature, etc. Yet a certified genius would never make the first rung if he insisted upon running as a Republican in Milwaukee or as a Democrat in Waupaca or Waushara or other solidly identified party constituencies.

Vacuum Attracts
Sometimes there is a vacuum that provides opportunity for the ambitious young in politics. Perhaps the best illustration ever afforded in Wisconsin came with the demolition of the old Progressive party 25 years ago. The established Progressive elders returned to the ancestral Republican home. But ambitious younger men in a hurry reached for the defenseless Democratic machinery, shrewdly suspecting an electoral realignment on the horizon.

Republican waiting lists were crowded because the Republicans ruled. Everything was up for grabs in the Democratic party. It is not to impugn them to suggest that such men as Gaylord Nelson, John Reynolds, Thomas E. Fairchild, Henry Maier, James Doyle, Horace Wilkie, William Proxmire, Andrew Biehl, to cite a few familiar examples among many, would have been unlikely winners of power and place if they had turned to the Republican party 25 years ago as did so many other Progressives when it became clear that a third party structure was not feasible.

Nor is it likely to offend Nelson, whose appreciation of irony is keen, to suggest that the most important event of his career was his defeat for the Assembly in Polk County in the Republican primary of 1946. Where would this immensely successful Democratic politician be today if he had won that first campaign?

Words are greedy; if we don't watch them, they extend themselves into meanings they didn't originally have — like "spouse," which once meant someone you were pledged, or engaged, to; and now means a wife or husband.

The idiotic and insoluble controversy about the relative importance of "heredity" and "environment" in determining individual intelligence was put down most neatly by D. O. Hebb, when he remarked: "To ask how much heredity contributes to intelligence is like asking how much the width of a field contributes to its area."

Nixon in Danger of Losing Reagan Support

California Governor at Odds With Federal Bureaucrats Over Rural Legal Funding

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The governor, absolutely frangorous collision course being tic about developments in his travelled by President Nixon quarrel with Washington over and Gov. Ronald Reagan of legal services for the poor, California was dramatized in an placed the call to a liberal emotion-charged telephone con- Republican who long has been a version last week between steadfast Nixon man: state As-Reagan and one of the Presi- semblyman William T. Bagley.

Federal "bureaucrats," charged Reagan, were driving a wedge between him and Mr. Nixon. Bagley retorted bluntly that the governor's criticism was hurting the President in California.

Evans Nowak

Reagan's intensity of feeling underscored a risky dilemma for the President. Unless Reagan agrees to a face-saving compromise on legal services, Mr. Nixon will be faced with either humiliating surrender by repudiating his own subordinates or dangerously alienating the governor.

Needs Reagan's Help

At stake is far more than legal services. Mr. Nixon cannot carry California in 1972 if Reagan is recalcitrant, and failure to carry California would mean failure to be reelected.

Consequently, the White House has tried everything to avoid a confrontation with Reagan.

That is why the White House on Jan. 30 ordered Mr. Nixon's antipoverty chief — Frank Carlucci, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) — not to override Reagan's veto of funding for the highly aggressive California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA). That decision went against Carlucci's own inclinations: the "compromise" worked out was a six-month temporary funding of CRLA with an investigating commission appointed.

A few shrewd presidential staffers speculated this only postponed trouble, and they were right. Reagan has charged the commission (consisting of three respected state judges from outside California) is not functioning as agreed upon, and he has called on its members to resign. High OEO officials claim Reagan's aides were advised well in advance of how the commission would function.

No Instructions

A possible reason for the disagreement can be traced to Mr. Nixon himself. In private conversations with Reagan

(most recently at San Clemente), the President tries so hard to please that the governor could be excused for thinking Mr. Nixon supports him completely. In fact, however, apart from an admonition from White House policy chief John Ehrlichman Jan. 30 to keep "cool" in handling Reagan, OEO has received no presidential instructions to appease the governor.

The upshot was Reagan's May 5 letter to the President attacking "bureaucrats" and his telephone call the same day to Assemblyman Bagley, then attending a session of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. The governor's immediate cause for displeasure was Ways and Means approval, Bagley concurring, of a bill to abolish the state OEO (which is headed by a former John Birch Society member).

But early in the half-hour conversation, Reagan got to what really bothered him. "Nixon and I are like peas in a pod," he told Bagley, adding his problem was with bureaucrats — all the bureaucrats, right up to and including Jack Veneman. He referred to fellow-Californian John G. Veneman, Under Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, who has been jousting with Reagan over welfare regulations. Reagan's implications: Mr. Nixon ought to either rein in or fire these offending bureaucrats.

Must Compromise

Bagley replied in kind. Commenting on criticism of Nixon welfare and poverty policies by Reagan and his aides, Bagley snapped: "I don't like it." It hurts Reagan as well as the President, he added. "I don't think you can win playing hard-core" — that is, right-wing — "politics."

That view is privately held by some White House aides who hope Reagan will break clear of his hard-line assistant, Edwin Meese, and buy some compromise — say, a continuation of CRLA under certain restrictions. But what if Reagan won't compromise and, indeed, insists now on presidential support for his opposition to the commission investigating CRLA?

At this writing, OEO has not heard from the White House following Reagan's May 5 letter. If silence continues, it will be a tipoff that Mr. Nixon may refund CRLA in the face of Reagan's opposition. Before that point is reached, however, the Oval Office will be steeped in the agony of decision-making which contemplates the immense risks for 1972

Most Domestic Air Fares Go Up By 6 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Domestic air fares rose 6 per cent Friday on most routes and may go up another 3 per cent in July.

The increases, approved last month by the Civil Aeronautics Board, are expected to give the 20 airlines involved an additional $200 million this year. They reported losses of about $154.9 million last year.

Fares dropped $1 or $2 on heavy-traveled routes between Boston and New York, Washington and New York, Chicago and Detroit, and Dallas and Houston. Fares are unchanged between New York and Pittsburgh, New York and Buffalo, and Boston and Washington.

Tourist Invasion Predicted by DNR

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Researchers who are having bad dreams about tourism's garden on Wisconsin outdoor facilities can prepare for nightmares, a spokesman for the Department of Natural Resources says.

Burt Loken, head of the department's tourist information office, predicted Wednesday that 1971 will be a record season for visits to Wisconsin, and that subsequent summers will produce more records.

Tourism promoters have expressed an anger since March when an adviser to Gov. Patrick Lucey advised the state against further promotion of tourism.

The adviser and other tourism researchers have said Wisconsin's tourist industry is really a seasonal operation, providing temporary employment and uncertain business investments, while causing crowded highways, campgrounds and parks.

Loken, addressing the Northeastern Wisconsin Recreation Industry and Show, acknowledged the weekend crowding at Devils Lake State Park near Baraboo, one of the parks near Small Estate Probate Bill Defeated

Plan Would Have Eliminated Some Fees for Attorneys

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A bill which would have required county probate officials to execute estates of less than $30,000 as killed 67-31 Wednesday by the Wisconsin Assembly.

The bill would have deprived lawyers of a source of handsome fees, and would have provided financial savings for persons with meager estates.

But opponents also claimed it would have shifted probate expenses to the county taxpayers.

Foes of the measure attacked as having been poorly drafted. They said one of its flaws could have deprived heirs that percentage of a total estate which could be saved by taking advantage of tax breaks.

The bill was authored by Rep. David Berger, D-Milwaukee. It would have created "short form will" which could be completed without an attorney's consultation.

Berger alluded his proposal as means to effect probate reform and channel a larger amount of a small estate to heirs rather than attorneys.

But the added tasks which would be given to county officials would cost Milwaukee county from $700,000 to $1 million, Dane County $300,000 and Wood County at least $100,000, opponents charged.

"I don't want to pay for my neighbor's probate," declared an angry Rep. John McCormick, D-Milwaukee, a member of the all-attorney judiciary committee.

McCormick was reprimanded by the Assembly speaker, Robert T. Huber, after he referred to the measure as "Berger's socialist bill."

Rules of the Assembly require members to refer to each other by district rather than by name to make debate less personal.

Panel Rejects Tech School Tuition Plan

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A recommendation from Gov. Patrick J. Lucey for charging tuition at the state's community technical schools was rejected Wednesday by the legislature's Joint Finance Committee.

The suggestion is a product of Lucey's efforts to cut state financial expenses.

But it has been opposed by those who argue the new network of vocational, technical and adult education institutes was designed for persons with too little income to afford college tuition.

If legislators upheld the Finance Committee's veto, there would be increased pressure on the district directors to hold down expenses. The committee agreed, however, with Lucey's plans for increasing state aid to schools to 60 per cent by 1973.

Lucey wants students to pay 12.5 per cent of schooling costs. In an effort to restrain increased tech district property taxes, the committee accepted a proposal by Rep. Anthony Earl, D-Wausau, for cutting from $2.00 to $1.80 the districts' tax authority limit per $1,000 assessed valuation.

Earl said reducing the districts' tax authority would inspire economy in local budgets.

'Let There be Music', 'Emergency Act Orders

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The Oregon Legislature has approved a bill to allow singing and piano playing in taverns.

The bill has an emergency clause saying: "This act being necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety" an emergency is declared to exist and this act takes effect immediately upon passage.

Oregon bills usually take effect 90 days after the legislature adjourns.

Milwaukee and Chicago branches.

When administrative expenses are consumed, he said, "for direct paid advertising, we spend $208,000."

Lucey has suggested the state subsidy be increased to $600,000, but with resort owners and other tourism promoters meeting the taxpayers' contribution dollar for dollar.

'Have-Nots' Have Hopes for Slim Margin in State Senate

MERRILL, Wis. (AP) — A better slice of the state's tax revenue for Wisconsin cities is within three votes of state Senate approval, Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier declared Wednesday.

He cited Republican Sen. Clifford Krueger of Merrill and Walter J. Chilsen of Wausau in his forecast of a legislative change of wind concerning previous defeats of tax-sharing reform.

"We're going to win," the mayor told about 80 representatives of upstate communities during one of the meetings of "have-not" municipalities Maier has been encouraged in his lobbying campaign.

"About three votes in the Senate will have to be changed," he said. "I think Krueger will fly right, but I have been especially critical of Maier's "have-not" campaign, as have GOP leaders from the Fox River Valley.

Democrats won control of the Assembly in the November election, but Republicans still rule the Senate.

"What is going to happen is the fact that those fat cats will be cut down to size," Maier said. "We recognize our rich uncles and cousins, but we wish them to pay their fair share."

The "have-not" municipalities are listed by reform proponents as 1,400 of the state's 1,800 municipalities.

The 1,400 reformers are said to represent 76 per cent of the state's population and would benefit from improved state tax - sharing to ease property taxes.

Pollution Monitor Fee Plan Given Preliminary Approval

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The Wisconsin assembly with great eagerness has put itself on the record as favoring a new concept of discouraging the discharge of air and water pollutants as it gave a preliminary vote of approval to a measure proposing a graduated tax on effluent to pay for monitoring devices in commercial and industrial establishments and municipalities.

There was considerable doubt, nevertheless, that the measure sponsored by Rep. Ray Tobiaz, D-Milwaukee, and anxiously endorsed and pushed by Rep. Lewis Mittness, D-Janesville, will become law. Mittness is the chairman of the committee on natural resources of the house that is under Democratic control.

The ease with which the assembly adopted amendments to include in the surveillance fee system small business establishments, agricultural enterprises and others raised doubts about the meaning the voting pattern. Some legislators also explained privately that Gov. Patrick J. Lucey has said that he will present a monitoring plan with a fee charge of his own composition and that the Democratic house will prefer to support such an administration measure, if it is disposed to enact such a novel plan for the state.

Senate Guns Down Captive Turkey Shoot

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The Kewaskum turkey shoot was shot down by the Senate Wednesday when a bill prohibiting target shooting for sport of captive live animals and birds was passed by a 30 to 1 vote.

The issue developed into a heated debate Tuesday afternoon when Sen. Dale McKenna, D-Jefferson, who represents Kewaskum, told the senate the bill would be considered "a slap in the face" by the Kiwanis club which operated the turkey shoot but ended them voluntarily.

The bill, he said, does nothing since there no longer are live turkeys shot. He proposed amendments that would have the prohibited hunting animals in bill, on the grounds it is the wild in order to sidetrack unnecessary, Mc Kenna voted the issue. The amendments, with the majority. Only Sen. McKenna said, represent the Raymond Johnson, R-Eau Claire, opposed the measure.

Long Debate
The vote on the bill followed nearly four hours of argument, whereupon the bill was sent to the legislature's joint finance committee which is not expected to discharge it for at least a month, and possibly more.

The principle of surveillance under a fee system that would require financing by the persons or businesses discharging wastes is backed by the State Department of Natural Resources, which says the idea is accepted in many the states and in some European nations. Gov. Lucey, in a special environmental message to the lawmakers a month ago, gave a high priority to such a plan but did not then offer details.

As the assembly bill is now written, there would be a minimum waste discharge fee of $50, with graduation up to $9,000 a year according to volume, to pay for monitoring equipment and a new team of engineers and others who would gather the data and interpret it and then use it to support proposals for pollution control orders, or actions against persons and organizations found to be in violation of abatement orders already in effect.

A key feature of the bill would be the requirement for the maintenance of a pollution register, with periodical publication of the names of persons and businesses found to be discharging harmful wastes into the air or into public waters.

Principal argument for the new plan was made by Mittness, who said the state's big and costly resource protection program cannot be effective until enforcement officers know more about the volume and nature of waste discharges.

He said DNR men now check pollution sources only at long intervals. "How in the world can they know what is going on?" he asked. He asserted also that many industrial firms of the state are not producing polluting materials, but that the public does not understand the distinctions between various production processes.

Other assemblymen asserted that there is a public demand for more effective work to prevent pollutants from being discharged to the detriment of the environment.

Rep. Michael Ellis of Menasha and Rep. R. M. Thompson of Poynette objected to the idea of imposing surveillance costs upon local property taxpayers through the levying of the monitoring fees upon municipalities.

Britain Gains In Bid to Join Common Market

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Britain and the six Common Market nations made a major breakthrough early today in their negotiations on the British application for membership in the European Economic Community.

Agreement was reached on three important issues, including a formula to reckon Britain's payments into the joint budget in its first years of membership. The budget now amounts to about $4 billion a year, more than 90 per cent spent on supporting Western Europe's dwindling farm population.

Still to be resolved are the questions of New Zealand's dairy exports and the future of the pound sterling. The negotiators were optimistic that these can be resolved at the next session.

Major Breakthrough

French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said the session produced a major breakthrough and negotiations could be completed by the end of June. Hans E. Koster of the Dutch Foreign Ministry predicted that negotiations to admit Denmark and Ireland could be completed at the same time, but he said the future of Norway's application was less certain because its proposal on fisheries was unacceptable.

Sigismund von Braun, the West German secretary of state for foreign affairs, said Britain is now ripe to join the Common Market.

"Everyone is convinced of this and that we can now go forward," he told newsmen. "Both the Six and Britain are happy about tonight's achievement."

Favored Treatment

At the all-night meeting the negotiators also agreed on favored treatment for the big sugar producers of the British Commonwealth, mainly Jamaica, Guyana and Mauritius; an elaborate calendar for the gradual increase of British farm prices to the much higher levels in the Common Market; and another calendar for reduction of British tariff protection against fruits and vegetables from the Continent.

As a sweetener, the British got a promise that the last Continental tariff walls against British industrial goods would come down six months sooner than planned, on July 1, 1977.

Actual amounts of Britain's financial contributions to the Common Market budget are to be discussed at the June session, but the formula calls for an annual British payment, beginning in 1973, based on British collections of import duties and on Britain's gross national product in comparison with those of the other Common Market countries.

$2.25 Minimum Wage, More Coverage Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-J., chairman of the Labor committee, proposed today raising the minimum wage to $2.25 an hour and extending coverage by 13 million more workers.

He said public hearings on his proposed bill would begin May 1 before a labor subcommittee with Secretary of Labor James Hodgson testifying for the administration.

Lower Minimum

Hodgson told a House Labor subcommittee Wednesday the administration favored a boost $1.80 from the present $1.60 effective next Jan. 1, and to $2.25 in 1974.

He said any speedier stepup could create inflationary pressures and risk higher unemployment.

Hodgson also said a lower minimum wage should be set for teen-agers and agricultural employees. And he opposed extending minimum-wage coverage to state and local employees.

Williams' bill would raise the floor to $2 on enactment and to $2.25 one year later.

The New Jersey senator said a person working at the present minimum earns only $3,200 a year, or less than the government-fixed poverty level of $3,900 for a family of four.

He said his proposal could substantially reduce the cost of welfare payments, particularly if Congress enacts this year a new income floor not only for all present welfare recipients but also for the working poor.

The 13 million additional workers covered under the bill would be federal, state and local government employees, most domestic workers, and employees of small retail stores.

Leonard Heads Law Enforcement Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — With six children and President Nixon looking on, Jerris Leonard was sworn in Wednesday at the White House as administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Leonard, 40, who had been an assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division will have powers in his new job that were denied his predecessor.

Nixon apparently also thought, mistakenly, that Leonard would receive a raise in his $8,000-a-year pay.

"A little more money," Nixon told after the brief swearing-in ceremony, "with six children you need it."

But the White House checked and said Leonard's pay would remain the same.

Family Assistance Welfare Plan Given Second Chance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's family-assistance plan for reforming the welfare system, which fell by the congressional wayside last year, is being given a new, running start.

The House Ways and Means committee has included essentials of the plan—substantial federal takeover of welfare and $2,400 income assurance for a family of four—in a mammoth Social Security-welfare reform measure.

Approved Wednesday except for a final review of language and formal vote, the measure is expected to go to the House for consideration early next month. When fully effective in 1973, the big bill would pump an additional $6 billion to Social Security pensioners and welfare recipients.

Tax Increase

The Social Security portion could require a sizable hike in payroll tax collected from employers and employees, though it is as stiff as the committee tentatively approved earlier.

Through increases both in the wage base and the tax rate, the bill would raise the maximum payment by an employer and his employee from this year's $405.60 each to $550.80 in 1972. The maximum increase would apply only to those earning $10,200 or more.

Committee spokesmen said the states could expect to save $1.5 billion to $2 billion of the money now expended on welfare.

The fiscal relief would fall unevenly on the states, depending principally on how generous their present welfare programs are.

Expenditure Increase

Fight Delayed On European Troop Total

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has won a one-week delay in its uphill fight against any Senate move to cut U.S. troop strength in Europe.

Republican sources said they were unsure enough votes could be mustered Wednesday to defeat Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's proposal for a 50-per-cent cut at the end of 1971 in the 300,000-man U.S. force.

But the White House was reported standing firm against any of at least three GOP alternatives designed to blunt the Mansfield move, preferring to keep the troop situation as is.

The troop-reduction proposal, offered as an amendment to the draft-extension bill, apparently took the administration by surprise, even though Mansfield had long talked of such a move.

Early Wednesday, the White House passed the word to administration backers to use whatever means necessary to delay a vote. After a day of meetings and drafting, an agreement was reached delaying action until next Wednesday.

Pretty Frantic

"The State Department is pretty frantic about this," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a backer of Mansfield's proposal. "They apparently fear it will pass," he told reporters. "As a matter of fact, they called me for the first time since I was elected to the Senate in 1968 so I guess they are pretty frantic about the situation."

As things stand now, a substitute by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., endorsing the Nixon administration's decision to maintain current U.S. troop strength in Europe, would be the first measure voted on.

But a move may be made to substitute another proposal, drafted by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., with approval of Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee and floor manager of the draft bill.

The Javits proposal requests President Nixon to negotiate with U.S. allies for them to assume a greater share of the European defense burden and "to withdraw U.S. forces in Europe to the extent made possible by such negotiations." It also requires reports to Congress on the negotiations every 90 days.

Plan to Drop Rat Eradication Program in Cities is Canceled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yielding to congressional criticism, the Nixon administration has backed down on its plan to drop the nation's rat control program.

Ron Coene, assistant director of the Bureau of Community Environmental Management, said the administration agreed Wednesday to restore the $15 million program for fiscal 1972.

Asked if congressional pressure forced the reversal, a high official in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said "That would be a proper conclusion."

"The administration line is that they have re-evaluated it," the official who asked not to be named. "They have decided there is justification for the program."

Dropped Quietly

The program was quietly dropped without explanation in the initial HEW budget request. Freshman Rep. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., called the decision unconscionable.

Several members of Congress joined in the protest, including Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, and Allen Ellender, D-La., and Reps. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., and Edward Hebert, D-La.

The program is under way in several cities, including Baltimore, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Seattle.

Besides extermination, the program emphasizes destroying breeding places such as abandoned buildings and trash heaps, and educating citizens on the problem.

Rat Signs

A recent report disclosed a 33 per cent decrease in "active exterior rat signs" where the program had been in effect between 1969 and 1970.

The five-year Baltimore program covers nearly half of the port city.

"At a cost to the federal government of less than $1.5 million, the rat eradication effort in Baltimore has truly produced gratifying results," Sarbanes said.

"After two more years when the program is complete," he said, "the city may well be able to assume responsibility for maintaining the areas cleared of rats by the federal program."

Although 23 cases of rats biting humans were reported in the city last year, Sarbanes said, "where the educational and enforcement program had been completed, there have been no reported rat bites at all."

"In fact," he said, "many of these areas are now completely rat free."

A Baltimore official predicted a premature end of the program would "virtually guarantee that those neighborhoods now cleared of rats will return to the pre-program level," Sarbanes said.

News Is Read, Survey Proves

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey shows that 73 per cent of Americans aged 14 to 25 read at least one newspaper each day, reports the Bureau of Advertising. The bureau said Wednesday it found in a poll of 1,647 young readers that one in five youths began reading a daily newspaper when they were 7 years old or less.

About 62 per cent of those surveyed said they read the entire newspaper, spending an average 36 minutes each day with the paper.

Tito, Nearly 79, Has No Successor

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Writer
On May 25 Josip Broz Tito will be 79 years old.
The president-for-life of Yugoslavia is the world's oldest surviving Communist ruler. For more than 60 years he has been involved in war, revolution, intrigue and nation-building.
Unlike other rulers in Communist nations, Tito can stand up publicly before an audience not explicit about just what it carries out. He has said that it ries may have involved difficulties within the League of Communists, which is the ruling party organization.

Ideological Differences
There have been troubles in the party between those who lean toward old Stalinist ideas and those who want to continue liberalization. There have been worries about a possible struggle for power after Tito. There have been worries, too, about the differences between various nationalities and ethnic groups in the country, because such differences could be used as political tools.
With regard to the succession, Yugoslavia is a Tito has spoken and now can only hope that his wishes are carried out. He has said that it history of the Balkans, often were violently hostile. Tito emerged from the World War II partisan fighting against the Nazi invaders as the single strongest leader in Yugoslavia, but it has been something of a political miracle that he held the federation together for more than a quarter of a century.

It was all the more remarkable in the face of heavy Soviet pressure between 1948 and 1955, aimed at toppling Tito from power because he had resisted Stalin's dictation in Yugoslavia's internal affairs. The Soviet leaders excommunicated Tito, the old and faithful Communist International agent, and thereafter brought all manner of economic and political pressure against him. Tito opened a door westward, got help from the Americans and survived.
Nikita S. Khrushchev ostensibly moved to mend relations with Yugoslavia in 1955, but Tito never was brought back wholly into the Muscovite family, and those relations soured on many an occasion thereafter. Today, Moscow is unhappy with Belgrade's example to other Communist nations and grows also because Tito's foreign policy rejects the formation of nations into military blocs. Tito calls his policy nonalignment and has considered himself leader of a "third world" group of non-aligned nations.
However, through the years, there have been elements in Yugoslavia who longed for the old days of Stalin when things were simpler for a ruling party which had only to order and be obeyed. The Yugoslavians are an independent breed, not too easy to handle in any case, and the Stalinists disliked the liberalization measures which not only set Yugoslav Communists apart from other Communists, but encouraged yet more liberalization.

A News Analysis

There was reason to worry about the succession. Yugoslavia is made up of Bosnia, Herzegovina, Montenegro, Croatia, Macedonia, Serbia and Slovenia. Tito himself is a Croat. The nation he rules embraces creeds, outlooks and races which, in the blood-spattered Allis-Chalmers is now the largest Wisconsin-based company in terms of sales and Kimberly-Clark Corp. dropped to second according to Fortune Magazine.

Allis-Chalmers, based in Milwaukee with two Appleton divisions, moved up a notch to 139th place among the nation's 500 largest industrial firms in 1970, the newest Fortune rankings indicated Tuesday.

Kimberly-Clark, Neenah, slipped to 141st rank from the 134th it was a year ago when it was the state's largest company. The Fortune rankings are the most widely accepted rankings of corporate size, the magazine said.

There were 14 companies in Wisconsin in the rankings. Last year there were 16 prior to the merger of the Neenah-Edwards Paper Co., Port Edwards, and the Great Northern Paper Co., and the shift of its headquarters to New York.

The magazine said that many companies advanced because they experienced smaller sales declines than others.

Total sales of the 500 hit a new high of $464 billion, up 4.3 per cent from a year earlier, but this was attributed to inflation.

ments still could make trouble. He pointedly warned that outside forces could not hope to deflect Yugoslavia from her present course.

Division of the presidency can lessen the distrust among the ethnic and national groups and provide enough cement to keep the nation together, provided no politicians are strong enough to subvert the arrangement. If it holds, Yugoslavia will have good prospects and Tito will have left a lasting legacy.

Planning Problem Solution To Get County's Attention

An entire day — next Tuesday — will be reserved by the Outagamie County Board Policy and Finance Committee to discuss the future of its regional planning participation and its membership in Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

The day was agreed to Wednesday after committee members discussed the proposal of the mid-Fox Valley chambers of commerce that the county and other units of government drop out of Northeastern and form a single metropolitan region planning agency.

Supv. G. Allen Bubolz, Appleton, called the proposal a "rather drastic and emotional approach to something that can be handled with more finesse." He urged staying with Northeastern and the metropolitan agency, the Fox Valley Council of Governments. Bubolz, whose father, Gordon, is chairman of Northeastern, said he was trying to be objective but felt that the county shouldn't throw away a decade of planning and plans by Northeastern.

Supv. Edward Spierings, Little Chute, defended the chamber proposal, saying the joint subcommittee of the chambers of Neenah - Menasha, Appleton, Heart of the Valley and Oshkosh had put much study into it. Spierings is village president and a member of COG's governing body.

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna, who had said earlier this year that there is strong county feelings to get out of Northeastern, said withdrawal can not be sold alone. He noted that a positive concept, such as what to do for future planning, has the only chance on the board floor.

The committee, which discussed planning for about two hours, agrees that Charles Hervey, executive director of Northeastern, and Franklin Nehs, Appleton chamber president and spokesman for the subcommittee, should be invited to speak on planning proposals Tuesday. Nehs may select an alternate. It was agreed.

Also, County Corp. Counsel William Schuh will be invited to discuss legal aspects of the planning questions.

Committeemen agreed that even a full day might not bring answers but they apparently want to come up with a recommendation in a short time.

Bubolz suggested that the chambers' proposal wasn't a valid reflection of all chamber members' feelings. He said that it was composed at a "private caucus of people who have special axes to grind," noting he believed that Eugene Franchetti, COG executive director, drew up the proposal for the chambers.

Spierings told Bubolz that the

Kaukauna Alone Sees Flaw in Pollution Bills

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Kaukauna, represented by City Atty. Donald Green, Wednesday took on single handedly most of Atty. Gen. Robert Warren's environmental protection package because of the city's difficulty in developing a sanitary landfill operation.

In a public hearing before the Senate Natural Resources Committee on the package of 12 bills and one resolution, Green was the only opponent of many bills. A variety of conservation groups, including the Wisconsin Resource Conservation Council, Trout Unlimited, the Milwaukee County Conservation Alliance and the Sierra Club warmly endorsed the measures.

Opening the hearing, the attorney general told the committee that the bills provide "an enshrinement of an idea we already are pursuing in Wisconsin" and in many instances provide corrections of clarifications of existing law.

The Kaukauna attorney's basic objection to the proposals is the role they provide for a public intervenor in many pollution cases. Green said that the Department of Natural Resources is better able to determine its own rules and regulations than an intervenor who is an employee of the Department of Justice with unclear responsibilities.

Kaukauna has been delayed a year in creating a sanitary landfill, Green contended, because of the public intervenor's role in a five-day Department of Natural Resources hearing brought about by a six citizen complaint about the choice of site. The land for the landfill, Green said, was purchased, rezoned, annexed to the city and surveyed and planned for a landfill by a consultant, with numerous public hearings held, and general citizen approval of the plan. Work has been halted.

"In our case," Green said, "the public intervenor questioned the regulations" the department was trying to enforce rather than questioning the city's compliance with them. "Who is in a better position to determine the worth of the regulations," Green asked. "The department or the attorney general's office."

Not Necessary

In providing for an expanded role of the public intervenor to represent the public interest in pollution cases, Green told the committee. "He would be a watchdog of watchdogs. I don't feel it's necessary." The city attorney said the public already has procedures for redress of grievances and the public intervenor provision is excessive.

The bills provide, among other things, that the public intervenor be notified of applications of sanitary landfill sites, that he may intervene before any state or federal administrative agency for the protection of the public right in natural resources and that he may inspect industries suspected of polluting.

Green charged that a revised definition of potential pollution proposed by the attorney general that includes "the contamination, rendering unclean, impure or injurious to health, harmful to recreation or deleterious to plant or animal life, of the air, land or waters of the state," was introduced as a result of the Kaukauna case. "The public intervenor perhaps feels that was a weakness in that side of the case," Green charged. "If you read the law literal-

Town Objects to X-Rated Movies

An Outagamie County town is concerned over whether X-rated movies shown at its outdoor theater are legal.

The Town of Vanden Brook board asked Dist. Atty. James Long for a legal opinion regarding films shown at the Tower Outdoor Theater, route 1, Kaukauna, which is in the town. The board cited complaints from area residents.

Long, in his reply, told the board that presently there is no law banning such movies from being shown in outdoor theaters. He urged members to contact their state legislators on the issue.

Legislation is pending now, Long instructed the board, that would ban the films as "distances harmful to minors."

Might Decide This Year

Byrnes Ponders Retirement

WASHINGTON — Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, confirmed today that he is weighing the question of whether to seek re-election to his 8th District congressional seat next year. But he added that it is a question "anybody in public office always faces" before an election.

"I always think in terms of should I or shouldn't I," he explained. He said he expects to have made up his mind by the end of this year or "the very early part" of next year.

"I also recognize that should I make a decision not to run, the district and the party and everybody else is entitled to know in time to make any plans they have to," he said.

Congressional elections are held in November of even-numbered years, but if Byrnes were to decide to drop out, the sooner he announced his decision the more time the Republicans party would have to choose a nominee to succeed him. The fact that Byrnes is thinking about retirement at the end of his 14th term which he won last fall was published in The Milwaukee Journal Wednesday.

He was quoted as saying, "I'm losing some sleep over my decision. I've been here a long time, and I have to face the fact that I have only a few productive years left. I don't think congressmen should stay in office until they die."

Nearing 58, Byrnes is scarcely a senior citizen by congressional standards. A few of his colleagues top the 80-year mark.

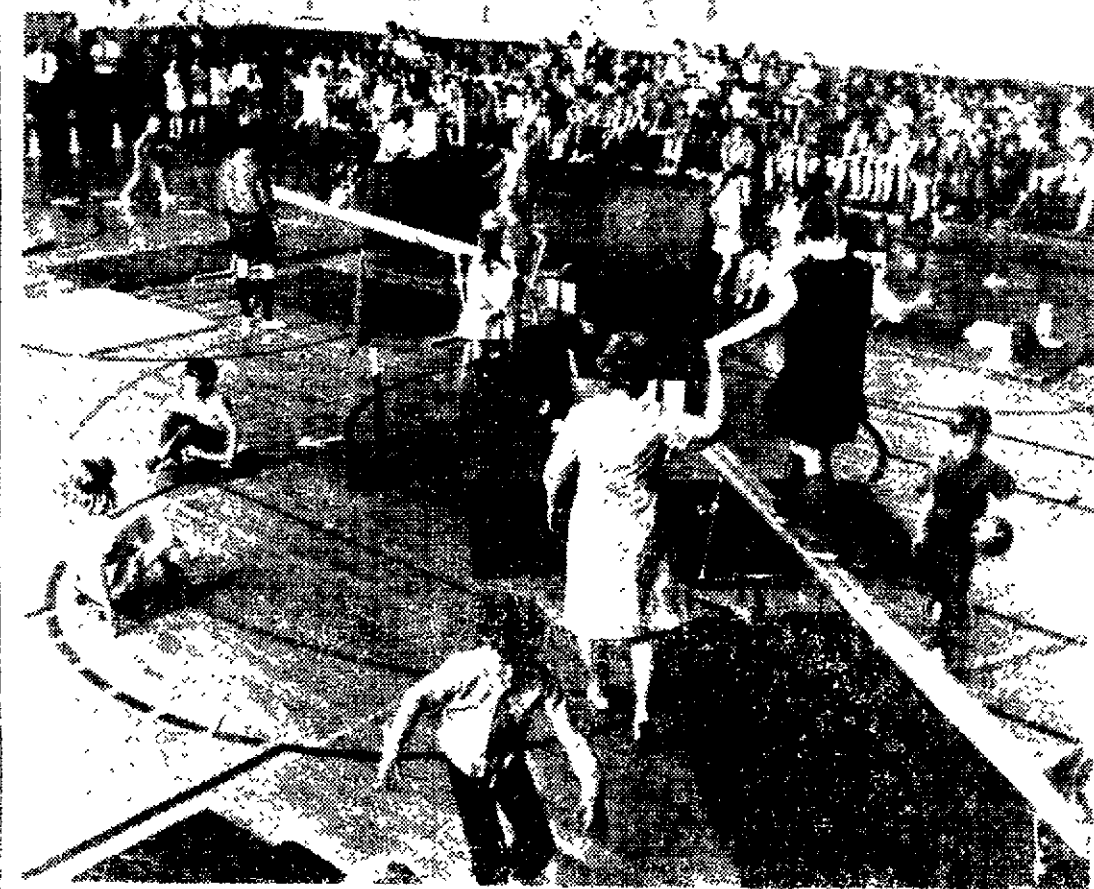

He said today his only quarrel with the report was with its emphasis. "Hell, some days I feel like quitting immediately. But then things get better," he laughed.

Teacher Contract Items May be Put To Fact Finder

With 1972 contract talks just under way, the Appleton teachers have requested state fact-finding on two items which man had no comment on the weren't resolved in 1971 bargaining and had been carried over into current bargaining. A press release today indicated that the "1971 employment contract was implemented with the understanding that negotiations would continue on the two remaining items which would be included in the contract at such time as agreement was reached." Attempts last winter to reach agreement failed.

The two items are: — The teachers request for establishment of a fair dismissal and discipline policy as a part of the 1971 employment contract. The teachers want procedures established, including an appeal to the courts, and grounds for fair dismissal listed while the board of education contends nonrenewal of a teacher's contract shouldn't be subject to arbitration or the complaint procedure.

— The teachers request that the grievance procedure in the contract include a final step of binding arbitration through the appointment of an impartial arbitrator. The board indicated it would accept binding arbitration of grievances if the teachers accepted its proposal to incorporate clarified board policies, now in a manual, into the master teacher contract.

An AEA spokesman said he expected the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission first would appoint a mediator who would try to settle the impasse on the items before going to fact-finding.

He said the quick move to fact-finding wasn't necessarily an indication of a breakdown in bargaining. "We've been talking about these two items for about a year," he said, noting they were not settled last year.

The 1972 pact talks opened Apr. 27 at a public exchange of initial proposals. Since then, two other sessions have been held, including the last one Tuesday when the AEA announced its intention to seek fact-finding.

An AEA spokesman had no comment on whether the two

Post-Crescent Given Summons In Suit by Hazen

A summons in a civil suit against The Post-Crescent by Howard H. Hazen, 368 McArthur St., Sun Prairie, was served on the newspaper this week. The summons was not accompanied by the complaint.

Two weeks ago The Post-Crescent was served with a legal notice by Hazen requesting retraction of certain statements made in news stories extending back to May, 1969, and it is presumed that the suit involves those articles.

The articles dealt with complaints made to Atty. Gen. Robert Warren by seven Democratic state representatives regarding Hazen's lobbying activities in connection with a bill then before the legislature to require the licensing of electricians. Two of the assemblymen, Rep. William Rogers of Kaukauna and Rep. Laurence Day of Eland, were served with similar summonses last week.

Abortion Clinic Director Honored

OSHKOSH — Dr. Alfred L. Kennan, director of a Madison abortion clinic closed by police April 19, was honored here Wednesday night by the Wisconsin Confederation of Zero Population Growth.

He received a ZPG plaque in recognition of "his courage and compassion in founding the Midwest Medical Center."

The award was presented to the Madison physician by Dr. Paul R. Ehrlich, Stanford University biologist and author of the best selling book, "The Population Bomb," at the end of Ehrlich's address to Oshkosh State University students in Albee Hall.

The Midwest Medical Center is the object of a complex legal battle which has involved state and federal courts the past month.

Kennan told reporters Wednesday night that he is optimistic about eventual reopening of the abortion clinic but added that "we're facing some more legal hurdles."

The Wisconsin Confederation of ZPG, founded last year, last night bestowed its "family of the year" award upon the Richard Franz family of New Berlin.

Gene H. Drecktrah, a member of the OSU biology department and Oshkosh coordinator of ZPG, said the Franz's were honored for "exemplifying ideals of living in harmony with the environment."

Two Children

The New Berlin people, who have limited their family to two children, ride bicycles whenever possible as an antipollution measure. Mrs. Franz said she bakes all of the family's bread.

Drecktrah told The Post-Crescent that ZPG favors limiting children to two, stabilizing American and world populations, and liberalization of abortion and birth control laws.

He said the Wisconsin ZPG organization has an estimated 2,000 members in 20 chapters. Earlier in the evening, Ehrlich told a large audience of students that damage to the environment began some 10,000 years ago when man first turned from a hunting economy to the practice of agriculture.

He said the "agricultural revolution" slowly began to build up population, "and our entire history since then has been a high birth rate and a declining death rate."

The world's food situation today, according to the Stanford biologist, is one of "absolute shortage and malnutrition."

He said that if the world's food was divided equally, "everyone would be protein undernourished," adding that unequal distribution of food means that 10 to 20 million people die of malnutrition every year.

Describing the United States as a "Resource Poor" nation, Ehrlich charged that the country "has been involved the past six or seven years in a resource-grabbing operation in Southeast Asia."

"The reason we are there, first and foremost, is to keep resources pouring into affluent America."

"And we'll continue to be involved as long as the resource situation stays this way..." He also included the problem of "environmental deterioration."

"It's quite possible," he added, "that every child born since 1945 has had a decade lopped off his life by DDT alone."

Turning to what he described as "other areas of ecological concern," Ehrlich noted that there are more hungry people

$400,000 Park Plan Goes To Menasha City Council

MENASHA — A six-year, $400,000 park development plan is ready to go to the common council for approval Monday night.

The plan was reviewed, for roughly three hours, by the park and recreation board Wednesday night. They made one change, according to board canceling out $64,000 for ballpark acquisition and development, and inserting $128,000 for ballpark development.

"That ballpark is not an inexpensive proposition," LaCount said.

The reason for the switch, however, is the fact that the city has decided to use 5.5 acres of land it already owns for the ballpark. The site is in the city's industrial park. It would sit next to the Morning Glory Dairy building at 1209 N. London Street.

$60,000 For Land
Thus, the city won't need any money for land acquisition, just development. They will be getting just over $60,000 for the present ballpark, from International Wagenknecht, and by matching that with state aids, hope to pay for the entire ballpark development without any local tax monies.

Mayor James Adams unveiled a tentative ballpark plan Wednesday, at a planning commission meeting. He asked the commission to defer action on the proposal until former ballpark committee Chairman Jerome Heiss can come in with detailed figures on costs and construction, however.

The site would measure 450 feet by 532 feet. About three acres would be used for the ballpark itself. Another two acres would be used for parking.

A 1.4-acre park area within the industrial park was outlined north of the dairy and west of the ballpark. Adams said this time, tried to sell a new high school would be developed into a park school proposal to the taxpayers, but they wouldn't buy it.

Menasha Policemen Reject City Council

MENASHA — Police patrolmen have unanimously rejected the city's latest contract offer. A counter-offer by patrolmen and city officials have decided to meet in closed session Monday to talk about the next step in the nine-month-old contract dispute.

Members of Local 34, Menasha Professional Policemen's Association, voted 16-0 to reject the city's latest offer. The vote was by secret ballot Wednesday night.

Neither city nor police negotiators are very anxious to talk about the contract dispute that started last August, when Local 34 submitted its first contract proposal.

Since then, both sides have traded offers several times. The last Thursday, after the last one from the city offered the choice between a five-step pay scale ranging from $650 to $755, and a six-step pay scale from $650 to $770, while the city students — something "we were hoping we could do."

Winnebago Tackles Problem of Junked Cars

OSHKOSH — Winnebago junkers as an investment. With the pit, people with junk: with the way the ordinance is by sheriff deputies as part of County junked cars too often "When scrap prices go up, we ers on their land would be set up. It is under the zoning laws. That means junkers are not cleared out unless there is a formal complaint. Then he goes out to the place, inspects in, and issues an order. This takes time he thinks could better be spent

There is no place to put them. The county sewage study committee, meeting for the first time in months, put zoning officer Carl Mailahn to work searching for a rentable hole to dump them.

The machines are not much wanted by salvage yards after they've been stripped of radiators, axles and engines. The metal is worth only $10 to $12 a ton, about the same as old newspapers, and if no salvageable parts are present and the hulk has to be burned out. Mailahn told the committee scrap dealers were not interested.

Mailahn said the county could sort of think of the pit full of

TV Checks Neenah's Sewers

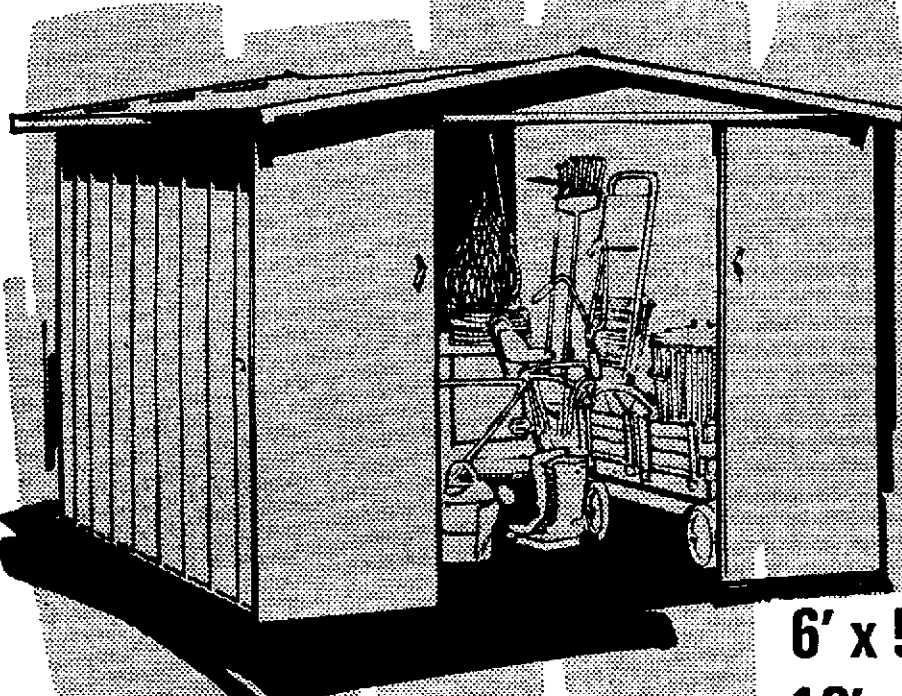

NEENAH — Television cameras started to roll this morning at Kimberly Point as American Pipe Services (APS) crews began to record all the leaks in the city's sanitary sewer system.

The television inspection program is part of a city-wide effort to eliminate clear water infiltration into the sanitary system. The city has long been aware of the values of television in pinpointing major and minor leaks in the sewer lines. For the past several years, TV has been used to inspect older sewer lines.

Enrollment of Freshmen Dips At UW-Madison

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin reported Monday reported freshman enrollment for 1971-72 is lagging compared with a year ago.

Applications on the 33,000-student Madison campus are down 19 per cent from last year. Similar declines were noted in the number of permits to register and in confirmed enrollments.

Officials earlier projected a freshman class enrollment of 4,190. The figure last year was 4,287.

Sharpest decline was noted in the number of out-of-state high school graduates seeking admission.

University spokesmen said factors contributing to fewer freshman prospects include economic conditions and easy availability of dormitory living space which might discourage early enrolling to insure living quarters.

Penalty Bill Aimed at Coin Box Thefts

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legislation which would make it a crime to jimmy coin boxes with burglary tools cleared the Wisconsin Senate Tuesday and advanced to the Assembly.

The bill provides for a $1,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment.

Under the present law, a person caught breaking into coin-operated machines—such as parking meters and coin-operated phonographs—can be charged only with destruction of property, according to Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh.

The measure was sent to the Senate on a voice vote.

Before taking the action, the Senate debated for more than an hour on a bill to extend state aid to county colleges through the 1972-73 school year.

The measure, which carries an $824,488 price tag, was referred to the Joint Finance Committee for study.

Lucey, Warren Push Own Plans

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Antipollution programs of the leading rivals in state politics were aired at the Capitol Wednesday.

Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren's program, comprising 12 proposed laws, got a hearing by the Senate Natural Resources Committee a few hours after Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's Dozen Bills were referred to Assembly committees.

Republican Warren got in a dig at Democrat Lucey's program when he told the Senate panel the governor's measures were "narrow in scope" compared with his.

Warren's measures will reach the floor of the GOP-controlled Senate while Lucey's bills will be handled by Democrat-controlled committees before reaching the Democratically dominated lower chamber.

Some Similarities

The rival programs have similarities.

Both propose making each day a pollutant is discharged a separate offense.

Each would change the Department of Natural Resources hearing procedure, but in different ways. A Lucey bill would give the department discretion as to whether it will hold a pollution hearing upon petition by at least six citizens.

A Warren proposal would require the mandatory hearing when pollution is "injurious to health, harmful to recreation or deleterious to plant or animal life," clarifying the department's responsibility.

A key Lucey proposal would place the burden of proof on the user of a natural resource that his activities are not causing pollution. Currently, the state must prove pollution is occurring.

Confidential Reports

A Warren measure would loosen the confidentiality requirement on pollution records the state now gathers from industries. It would free many of the records for use in court proceedings against polluters.

The proposal "would do the same thing" as Lucey's burden of proof measure, Warren said.

Lucey and Warren seek a law requiring monitoring of industrial waste discharges.

Three of the attorney general's measures deal specifically with his bailiwick, the Department of Justice. Lucey's proposals would add little to the environmental duties of his Republican rival.

Warren seeks to expand the department's duties as a public intervenor, to allow intervention in any state or federal proceeding to protest "public rights" to a clean environment.

Right to Intervene

He also wants the right to intervene in any lawsuit involving pollution, and the right for Justice Department employees to collect pollution data during on-site inspections of industries.

Lucey's tack, in contrast, was to propose greater Public Service Commission review of utility plans, to include pollution under the state Public Nuisance Law, and to consider the environmental impact before issuing permits to change watercourses or construct dams.

A similar Warren proposal would forbid issuing a permit for a dam on a trout stream, by the Department of Natural Resources.

Damming such a stream "can destroy all or some of the spawning grounds" of the trout, Nash Williams of Trout Unlimited told the hearing on the Warren proposal.

ly," Green said, "you couldn't do anything." A landfill, he said, obviously would be deleterious to plant life and animal life on the site itself, for example. He said the change would result in more lawsuits.

Endorses Provision

The city attorney endorsed a provision of the proposed amendment to the state constitution that would permit the state to acquire land considered to be of extraordinary ecological value.

Green said that a law proposed to the Assembly provides merely that sanitary landfills may not be developed on ecologically valuable land, and that is a discriminatory proposal "if it is determined the land has value, then acquire it. You shouldn't discriminate only against that particular use," he said, indicating that other potential uses of valuable land are destructive.

The only other significant opposition to the bills came from the Wisconsin Suburban League that opposed a provision in the solid waste disposal bill that would make a town dumping permit unnecessary for development of landfills. Henry Rohner, Mt. Pleasant, told the committee that permits should continue to be required. The proposed change he made in the bill gets to the heart of the problem cities have faced in trying to develop landfills.

Prospective Students and employers, as well as the interested public, were introduced to the data processing program offered at Appleton's Fox Valley Technical Institute Wednesday during an open house. Studying some of the sophisticated equipment are, from left, John McDonald, Oshkosh, advisory board member; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Schroeder, Greenville, parents of a prospective student; Donald Angerer, Neenah, advisory board member and speaker for the event; and Michael Wilfling, Appleton, second year student. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Outagamie County Judge Urban no-contest plea on behalf of ban P. Van Susteren, who today was fined $25 and costs or 10 days in jail on a 1969 traffic Appleton police who ticketed charge, explained that he in no him after his car was involved way delayed the disposition of in an accident at Prospect Avenue and Memorial Drive Nov. 20, 1969.

Elton Morrison, a retired judge from Columbia County who now serves as a reserve judge, found Van Susteren guilty after hearing statements from Asst. City Atty. Richard Hamilton, Van Susteren and his attorney.

In reply to a question from Morrison, Hamilton said the normal fine for a red light violation is $20 to $25. Morrison said he was assessing the upper estimate in order to "be perfect with the Division for Library Services, who will speak on the impact of proposed library legislation on the Fox Valley system of libraries. Also on the program will be Mrs. David Kelley, public relations specialist of the Manitowoc Public Library, on "Public Relations and Reaching Out Into the County and Community."

Librarians attending the meeting will have the opportunity of touring the newly established "Mailbox Library" of the Manitowoc County Library System.

Morrison was appointed to hear Van Susteren's case after the other two Outagamie judges disqualified themselves. Van Susteren had not entered a plea before today. He said he suffered broken ribs in the accident and did not know the judges had withdrawn from the case until he returned to work.

Cubs to be Asking: 'Shall I Fill 'Er Up?' As They Run Station

Sunday is gas day for the Cub Scouts of Edison School, pack 53.

The youngsters that day will take over the entire operation of Wilsons Shell Service Station, 800 E. Wisconsin Ave.

All proceeds from the project will go to the pack for camp expenses, and this is the reason for the event. However, before the day ends, the boys will have gained experience in operating a business, working with the public, and probably a few sore muscles.

Al Holmes, group leader, announces that there will be clowns on hand all day, and free candy and balloons.

Youth's Photos Help in Conviction Of Two Appleton Street Brawlers

Four photographs taken by an Appleton teen-ager depicting a knife and bar stool fight downtown April 24 were instrumental in the convictions of the participants this morning.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller imposed fines of $50 and costs against Wayne R. Schimmer, 27, of 608 N. Division St., and Frank Krause, 58, of 1215 S. Oneida St. Both men stood trial on charges of disorderly conduct.

Police were met with conflicting stories when they investigated the fray outside an E. College Avenue tavern. Krause received a head cut and Schimmer was bitten on the elbow. The stories still conflicted today when Schimmer and Krause took the stand.

But Keller, after viewing the photos taken by Timothy Scheid, 15, of 843 E. South St., declared there "isn't any question there was a fight," and proceeded to find the men guilty. The shots were introduced as evidence.

Scheid, who told a reporter after today's session that he "carries a camera wherever he goes," was closing a bookstore across the street from the bar when he noticed the fracas and started shooting away. Later, Scheid, the son of an Appleton fireman, took the pictures to a patrolman who investigated the incident. The policeman said today winning the case would have been difficult without the photos.

Police originally went to the tavern on a report that Krause had caused a disturbance by

First Refusal Options for VTE-12 OK'd

Approval of first refusal options for Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12 (VTE-12) has been recommended by the Outagamie County Board's public property and parks committee.

The options, if approved by the board June 8, would give the district a three-year first refusal option on 40 acres of land on the east side of Bluemound Road and a one-year first refusal option on 103 acres on the west side of U.S. 41.

Under terms of the options, the county could not sell the land to anyone else without first giving the vocational district an opportunity to buy the property.

The committee also will slightly revamp its procedures for renting use of the shelters at Plamann Park as the result of complaints of a "rock fest" at the park last Saturday night.

Reservations for use of a shelter now must be made in person at the courthouse and the fee paid in advance. At the same time, copies of the park use ordinance will be given to the group making the reservation.

The committee agreed, however, that the situation at the park Saturday night was not as bad as originally presented.

Supv. Bernard Tillman, who represents the Town of Grand Chute in which the park is located, said the originator of the petition, Willard Kern, 42, Crestway Ct., has been a "free-speech complainer" to the town.

Supv. Theodore Kemps, Kimberly, said the sheriff's department reported the sound from the party could barely be heard one-half mile away.

Park Supv. Stan Perkins also reported the debris from a party, which was held by a repeatedly coming behind the bar for change. When they arrived at the scene, Krause was waving a knife.

Schimmer, meanwhile, who had been in the tavern, said he meant to disarm Krause and took a barstool outside for protection. They were old friends, he said. "When somebody comes at me with a knife," Schimmer proclaimed, "he's out to cut me." He testified that he threw the barstool at Krause, inflicting forehead cuts.

Krause testified he went back inside after being ordered out because he thought he may have left change on the bar.

One photo showed Krause holding a jackknife. Another pictured him apparently trying to ride away on his bicycle. That same shot showed Schimmer, arms outstretched, grasping the bar stool.

Two Legislators Selected for Politics Seminar

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau MADISON — Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, state Rep. Dennis Cona, D-Milwaukee, have been chosen from the Wisconsin legislature to participate in the annual Eagleton Institute of Politics seminar for young legislators. It will be held in Florida later this year.

Two junior legislators from each state are chosen annually for participation in the Eagleton program, designed to assist legislators with leadership potential.

The annual seminars are held in cooperation with the National Conference of State Legislative Leaders. Nominees are reimbursed for their expenses.

group of St. Norbert College students, was no greater than that left after many other group gatherings at the park.

He also said he had talked to some of the residents in the area who said the noise from the neighboring Outagamie Speedway was much greater than from the party.

In other action, the committee opened bids on planning development at Plamann Park and referred the bids to the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission for review.

Sears Recalls Dinnerware

Inspectors Say Lead Content May Lead to Illness

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sears Roebuck and Co. is recalling 2,000 sets of imported dinnerware because of lead contamination, the Food and Drug Administration said Wednesday.

Sears agreed to the national recall last week after government inspectors found lead levels in the Evening Shadow pattern dinnerware ranging from 12.5 parts per million to 46 ppm, the agency said. The FDA safety limit is 7 ppm.

The Ashland and Oshkosh Sears stores don't carry the Evening Shadow line.

A spokesman for the retail chain said the pattern has been removed from store shelves. Customers with sets may exchange them or get their money back, he said.

Involved are sets of 20 pieces—all of which are stamped on the bottom "S.R., Evening Shadow Stoneware, Made in Japan, 4105."

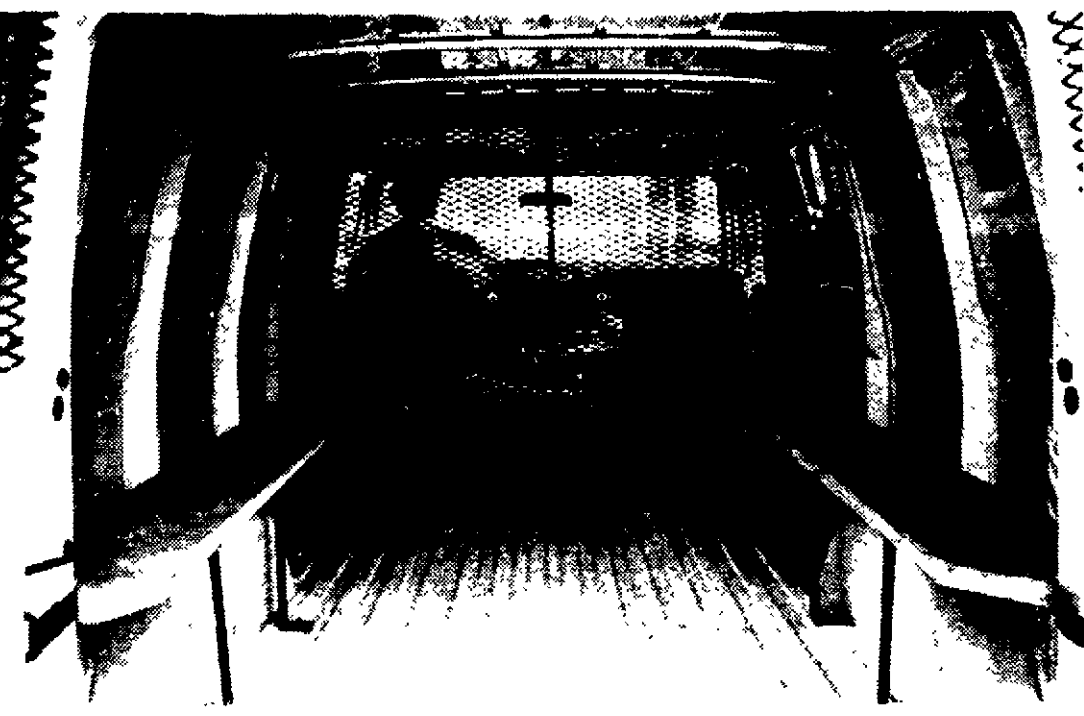

The FDA described the pattern as dark blue and olive green. It was sold in Sears stores nationwide and by mail order, the company spokesman said.

Sears is the largest firm involved so far in the recent series of pottery recalls linked to excess lead, which can be leached by certain fruits and drinks and lead to possibly serious illness.

Police Get New Patrol Van

A patrol van, boasting several advantages not found in squad cars, has been put into service by the Appleton Police Department.

According to Capt. Vilas Burmeister, who is in charge of the van truck, the 1971 General Motors unit is fast, spacious and necessary. Identifying decals were placed on the vehicle last week. The truck has been on the road for two weeks.

Burmeister emphasizes the van will be strictly for "prisoners, not patients." Anyone violent, or "large numbers of people," as found in riots, will be transported in the van, he says. "It will not compete with the ambulance services or rescue squad," Burmeister comments assuringly. Basic first aid equipment is aboard, however.

Police first put in their request for the vehicle through the City Council's public safety committee two years ago. The committee approved the leasing of the van from a Janesville plant which manufactured it. But delivery was delayed for nine months due to a strike last summer at the southern Wisconsin plant.

The hauling compartment of the van is bare, except for two wooden benches mounted into a metal floor on each side. A plexiglass-covered screen separates prisoners from the driver and his passenger. A 12 gauge shotgun is mounted above the driver.

The van comes equipped with a 350 cubic inch engine, automatic transmission and four-barrel carburetor. Other equipment includes gas masks, flares, a wrecking bar and riot stick.

Burmeister explains that the van will be summoned to back up a squad car where necessary. A crowd tending to get out of control or persons intoxicated are two instances where the van might be used he says.

Over a recent weekend, police hauled two intoxicated juveniles to the police station by squad car. One of the youths vomited en route. The odor lingered for days. In contrast, the van's metal floor can be flushed down with water.

Cruiser drivers are alternating in the van. The unit will normally be kept close to downtown, while in operation on 24 hours a day.

Planning Solution Sought by County chamber membership instructed the subcommittee to make the study and come up with a recommendation.

Bubolz lauded Northeastern's work and suggested that it could remain intact, with nearby counties being invited to join it. He also said that Northeastern still favored merger of COG and its administrative groups.

DeLaHunt, who expressed no preference, said that the committee must make a recommendation, and to do this intelligently and decisively, it will have to do much work. He emphasized that the planning situation is complex.

Recent federal and state changes in planning requirements have forced boundary changes in regional agencies or the formation of a new one. Neither Northeastern nor COG now satisfies these requirements, although each is federally certified for certain federal funding requirements.

In other action, the committee endorsed County Executive Alvin Woehler's position paper proposals to conduct studies of institutional consolidation and elimination of fragmented services for the mentally handicapped.

He warned of the possibility of worldwide plague, perhaps a new and peculiarly virulent type of flu or, more likely, transmission of some sort of animal virus to humans.

Lashing out at what he termed "moral pygmies" at work on new weapons of biological warfare, Ehrlich added that "we could very, very easily find ourselves in a thermonuclear war that no one wants. The ecological effects of that would be devastating."

Ehrlich called for population control throughout the world, starting in the over-developed countries, including the United States, the Soviet Union and Japan, and then in the under-developed nations.

Cut in King Firemen Called Irresponsible

KING — Cutting the fire department from 12 firemen to five at the Grand Army Home for Veterans, as the legislature's Joint Finance Committee did in its action on the home's budget two weeks ago, would strip the 711 sick and disabled patients of adequate fire protection. This is the claim of Dr. V. G. Olson, Eau Claire, chairman of the State Board of Veterans Affairs, spelled out in a release today.

"This action successfully urged upon the Joint Finance Committee by Reps. Anthony Earl, Wausau, and Earnest, Waupaca City fire department, and I have been advised that it is now over committed to other communities. Further, it is not trained or equipped for mass evacuation," Olson disclosed.

Under the best conditions, a minimum of 15 or 20 minutes would elapse before the Waupaca Fire Department could put any men or equipment at the home in case of emergency, he claimed.

Firemen have many duties at the home in addition to standing by to fight fires, including operation of the central switchboard around the clock and training and supervision of other staff in mass evacuation of patients from the two 200-bed highrise extended care buildings at the Home, he continued.

"The only other fire protection nearby is the all-volunteer ings." Also cited in conclusion, "In the case of a catastrophic fire the first five or 10 minutes are critical."

"Most casualties in recent nursing home fires throughout the nation have resulted from supposedly fireproof buildings during the entire show.

Continued State Life Insurance Role Endorsed

Report Suggests Lifting Ceiling Now at $10,000

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The chief of the technical staff of the legislature's insurance laws revision committee has set the stage for another controversy about the legitimacy of the state government's life insurance enterprise by endorsing its worth and recommending expansion of its operations.

The report of Spencer Kimball, dean of the law school of the University of Wisconsin and a specialist in insurance affairs, has been filed with the legislative study group but has not yet been acted upon. The revision process has been under way for several years and a number of major recommendations for changes in insurance laws have been filed with the new legislature thus far.

The state life fund was set up by legislative act about three quarters of a century ago as a reflection of the populist movement that grew powerful in the rural states of the Midwest and Northwest at the turn of the century. But it has grown slowly and even today represents only a tiny fraction of the life insurance in force in Wisconsin. At its last accounting it had only about 9,000 contracts in force, with a total insurance coverage of about $50,000,000. Policies are limited to a maximum of $10,000 in value and can be sold only to residents of Wisconsin.

The Kimball report asserts that "if the state can provide service better or more cheaply for citizens than private enterprise it should be free to do so," and then asserts that the state life fund is well run and does in fact provide life insurance at a lower cost than private underwriters are able to offer.

Costs Lower

One reason is that the fund (which does not advertise) tends to attract insurance buyers who do not need inducements and that it is able to translate the sales and promotional costs of private competitors into lower premium charges, the report said.

"We believe that the fund will always occupy a useful but comparatively tiny niche in the corner of the life insurance market, dealing with a handful of people who do not need to be sold," said the staff report directed by Dean Kimball.

The document urged the revision committee to ask for the repeal of the limitation of sales to Wisconsin residents, and the lifting of the $10,000 per contract ceiling.

In other sections of the report, the legislature was criticized for "raiding" the state fire fund, which provides fire and related casualty insurance for state buildings and properties and those of Wisconsin municipalities, and suggests that the state insurance department be given contingency power to establish a state auto insurance fund against the chance that the private market for government vehicle insurance may become more difficult in the future.

Most observers believe the Kimball report will have no influence upon the legislature, which has repeatedly had proposals to repeal the life insurance enterprise of the state and has killed them, but has also shown no disposition to promote the fund through advertising or other sales solicitation methods.

School Board OKs Contract

Kimberly to Use CESA 9 Services For Data Processing

KIMBERLY — The board of education Monday night authorized Supt. Ray Hamann to enter into contract with Cooperative Education Service Agency No. 9, Green Bay, for data processing services for the coming school year at a cost of $5,095.

This is the third year the school district has utilized the service which handles payroll, census, school inventories, student scheduling and other similar work.

Low bids totaling $8,950 for various types of paper needed for the coming term were accepted from five different companies and six companies shared in low bids amounting to $1,958 for general office and school supplies.

Permission Granted

Mrs. Margaret Engel, reading specialist, was granted permission to attend a summer reading institute at Moorehead, Minn., with the district to pay school fees and Mrs. Engel transportation expenses. Allan Leicht was approved to take the school census and Richard U. Landreman and Co., Appleton, was hired to audit school records.

Hammen was instructed to contract with two interns for science and two for social studies to assist on the Senior High School level for the coming years. Board members agreed to lease approximately 18 acres of school owned property to Wilfred Van Handel for agricultural purposes. The land is near the senior high school and not used for school purposes.

The resignation of Mrs. Catherine Osborne as junior high home economics teacher was accepted and approval was given to hire Mrs. Linda Teetart as senior high school English teacher and forensic coach. Starting contract salary will be $8,642 with an additional $140 for forensic duties.

Vocational Board Drops Support Of Tuition Plan

RHINELANDER, Wis. (AP) — In a reversal of action taken at its March meeting, the State Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education voted 5-3 Tuesday to recommend to the Legislature that the tuition proposal for vocational school students be removed from the budget.

The board, meeting here, took the action after long discussion. The board in March had approved a plan to charge 12 1/2 per cent of instructional costs.

Shiocton Youth Put on Probation

An 18-year-old Shiocton youth, Carroll Garcia, was placed on two years' probation Tuesday for burglary and theft charges to which he previously pleaded guilty.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer stayed prison and jail terms, but directed Garcia to pay court costs and fees for a court-appointed attorney. Garcia will be under the care of an agent from the State Department of Health and Social Services.

Garcia broke into the cottage of Robert Skoronski, in the Town of Maine last June 14. On Aug. 6, he stole a tent, lantern, hatchet and five blankets belonging to Raymond Van Stratton. The items were taken from a campsite in the Town of Bovina.

County investigators brought the charges.

Tax Sharing Delegates to Visit Oshkosh

Former Minnesota Governor Heads Group Touring Cities

OSHKOSH — Harold LeVander, former governor of Minnesota, will head a three-man delegation from the National Citizens Committee for Revenue Sharing in a visit here May 18, one of a dozen visits planned to dramatize the needs of the nation's cities.

City Mgr. Gordon Jaeger confirmed plans for the Oshkosh visit at a news conference Tuesday. He said city officials will meet with the delegation in council chambers at 9:30 a.m., followed by a tour of city facilities. The meeting is open to the public.

Jaeger said that under a program of revenue sharing proposed by President Nixon, Wisconsin would receive an annual $124,370,590 with 43.11 per cent of the total to be allocated to local units of government.

Added Revenue

It would mean revenue of $740,813 to Oshkosh alone, he said, with $351,318 going to Neenah, $198,719 to Menasha and $278,825 to Winnebago County.

The city manager said he understands the shared revenues are in addition to existing and continuing federal programs providing grants-in-aid for a variety of purposes.

The May 18 session here will begin with a series of slides to dramatize the needs of the city, Jaeger said.

Oshkosh councilmen last week voted five to two for a resolution endorsing the general concepts of general and special revenue sharing as proposed by the Nixon Administration. Jaeger said the proposal has received strong support from the National League of Cities, the National Conference of Mayors, the International City Management Association and other organizations.

The Fox Valley Council of Governments, the City of Fond du Lac and the National Citizens Committee encouraged the city to support the concept.

Aspin to Speak At Civil Liberties Meeting Sunday

DE PERE — U.S. Rep. Les Aspin of the U.S. First Congressional District will speak Sunday evening at the annual meeting of the Northeastern Wisconsin chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the Minahan Science Building at St. Norbert College. It is open to the public.

Aspin, a Racine Democrat, defeated veteran politician Henry Schadeberg last November to become the state's newest congressman. At 33 he is the youngest member of the prestigious House Armed Services Committee, whose members' average age is 55.

Aspin is a native of Milwaukee. He graduated from Yale University with a major in history, continued his studies at Oxford in England, and received a doctorate in economics from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1965.

He worked on the staff of Sen. William Proxmire in 1960 and later directed Proxmire's successful campaign for re-election in 1964. While serving in the Army from 1966 to 1968, Aspin was an economic adviser in the office of the secretary of defense, Robert McNamara. During that time, Aspin made five trips to Vietnam, writing reports on various aspects of the war.

The board approved an appropriation of $200 to provide additional supervisory personnel for the expanded girls' athletic association programs at the senior high school. Approval of an accident insurance plan for students for the 1971-72 school year was given with the understanding the insurance would be optional and premiums paid by parents of students desiring additional coverage.

Chicken Salad

Crunchy Baked Apples

Ham-Egg-Asparagus Luncheon

For the Ladies

By Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

This is the time of year when clubs of all kinds are winding up a year of activity, usually with a party menu for that very last meeting as a sort of send-off into summer.

The menu can range all the way from a hearty luncheon with all the trimmings to a buffet of canapes and cooling drinks. A simple dessert of especial goodness such as the baked apple, served with coffee and tea makes an excellent choice. Of course, chicken salad always has been a favorite with the ladies and the recipe today is an unusual one that lends itself to a glamorous 'Goodbye-for-Now' sort of meal.

Another fine choice for a "best wishes" or "bon voyage" party is the lovely Avocado Cake with its recipe straight from California where the avocados grow so well.

The most beautiful part of all the recipes today is that they are special, yet easy to prepare.

Long, tall glasses of cocktail vegetable juice that's been well cooled make an admirable companion drink for salads or canapes. Since there are available large cans of the eight-vegetable drink, this is an easy way to keep the calories down (a six-ounce serving is only 30 calories).

Serve the vegetable cocktail with lime wedges for both looks and a piquant flavor. Give the drinks a swift grind of black pepper for extra zip, if desired, along with the slice of lime perched on the edge of the glass. Serve with Cheesy Clam Canapes, garnished with carrot curls. Melba toast rounds are topped with cottage cheese mixed with minced clams, chili sauce, parsley and a nip of horseradish.

CHEESY CLAM CANAPES
7 ounces canned minced clams, drained
1/2 cup low-fat cottage cheese
1 tablespoon chili sauce
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
12 Melba toast rounds
Carrot curls
Cucumber slices
Pimiento strips

In a bowl combine clams, cottage cheese, chili sauce, parsley and horseradish. Blend well, then chill. Spread mixture on toast rounds (or zweiback, if preferred) and garnish some with carrot

It's Time for Dairy Recipe Contest

Once again the Farm Bureau Women are sponsoring the Outagamie County June Dairy Month Recipe Contest. Mrs. Hilmer Mueller is chairman with the members on her committee Mrs. Alwin Schroeder, Mrs. Norman Marks, Mrs. Alois Leisgang and Mrs. Gerald Schaumburg.

The recipe format for 1971 is quick bread, which means no yeast must be used. Another thing to remember, besides the "no yeast," cautions Mrs. Mueller, is that eggs are not a dairy product. Farm product, yes, but not a dairy product.

Any man or woman, 18 years of age or over, may enter if he or she lives in Outagamie County. More than one entry may be submitted but only one will be picked. Recipes must be typed or clearly written with directions complete, size of utensil stated and the time and cooking or baking temperature stated.

Each entry must include name, address and phone number of each contestant in upper right hand corner of the recipe page. These will be removed, recorded and a number substituted for judging.

The contest runs from May 1 through June 12. All recipes should be sent to "Dairy Quick Bread" Recipe Contest, Farm Bureau Service Center, Post Office Box 255, Black Creek, Wis., Zip 54106.

Six County winners will be chosen and these Outagamie cooks will compete in the Outagamie finals Friday, June 25, in the kitchens of the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

Cream Pie
Elegant Yet
Low in Cost

Almond Caramel Cream Pie (the name is almost enough to make one's mouth water!) is so luscious that it will never occur to guests that it's a low-cost dessert.

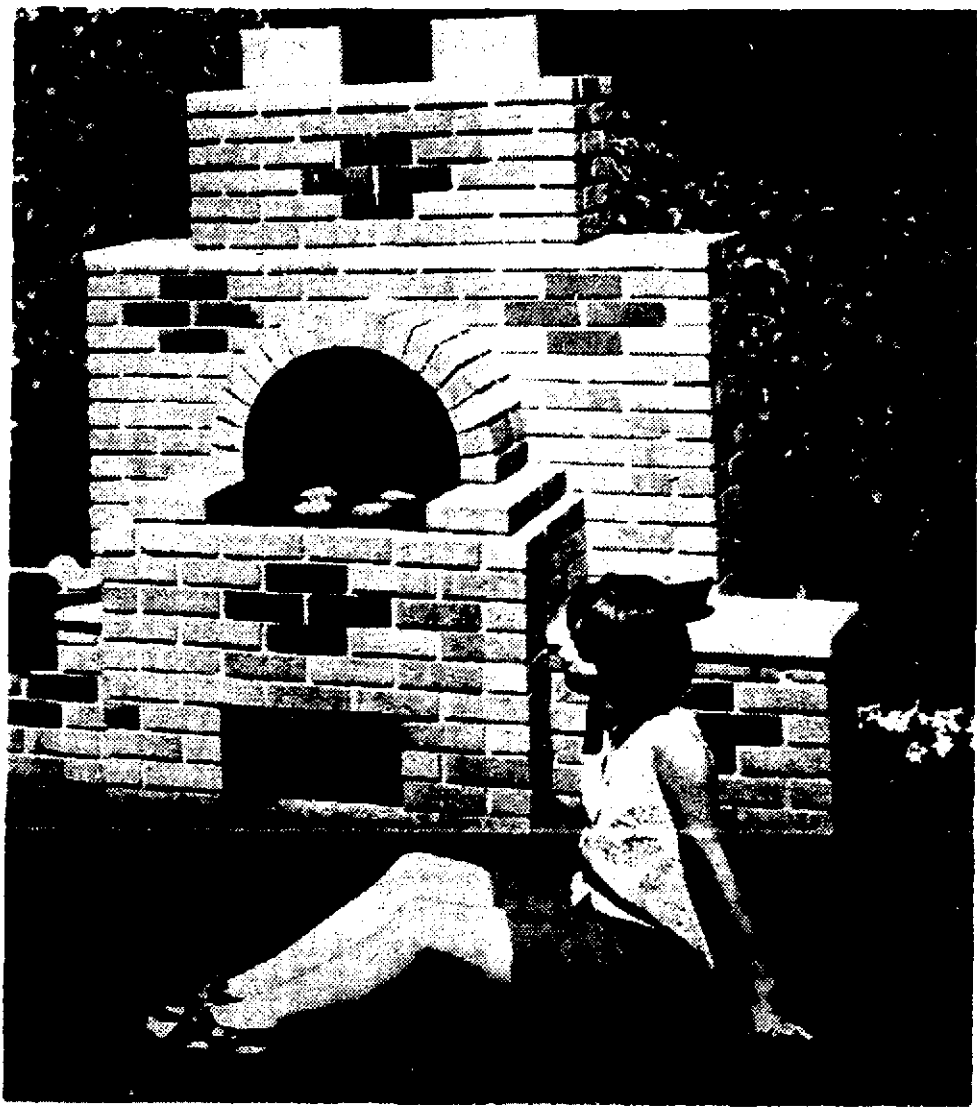

It takes only a few minutes to make and it's not difficult. This pie is equally appropriate for an elegant dinner coffee or for dessert and coffee entertaining.

ALMOND CARAMEL CREAM PIE

- 1/2 cup sliced almonds
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- Baked, cooled 9-inch pastry shell

Spread almonds in shallow pan and place in 350-degree oven for about 8 minutes, stirring occasionally, until golden.

Scald milk. Heat half cup sugar in saucepan over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until sugar becomes a light brown syrup. Stir slowly into hot milk. Heat, stirring, until caramel mixture dissolves. Blend remaining 1/2 cup sugar with cornstarch and salt. Stir into hot mixture and cook, stirring, until thickened. Cover, place over boiling water, and cook 15 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Beat egg yolks and slowly stir into thickened mixture; cook and stir 3 to 4 minutes longer. Remove from heat; blend in vanilla. Stiffly beat egg whites and fold into hot mixture. Cool to lukewarm. Fold in almonds. Pour into pastry shell. Garnish with additional roasted almonds, if desired. Cool. Recipe makes six generous servings.

The Duplex Barbecue is detailed, brick-by-brick on Craft Pattern 847. Side slabs provide plenty of working area.

Ever Try Building a Barbecue?

A couple could have fun building this well-designed, practical barbecue from Craft Pattern 842. The arched opening incorporated in this new design, removes it from the class of ordinary barbecues. Patterns and instructions show brick by brick how to build the curved form and the two sides slabs which provide plenty of working area. A metal barbecue unit can be installed. Overall measurements are 6 ft. 7 in. height and 94 in. width.

An auxiliary unit to the fireplace is built from Craft Pattern 614. Simple construction keeps material and labor at a minimum. Built-on benches cannot stray, and the unit is particularly rigid with parts bolted and legs spread to prevent upsetting. Top is 29 in. wide, 6 ft. long and 28 in. high. Use redwood with redwood finish or build it of pine and paint it.

Send 65 cents for each Craft Pattern. They will be mailed to you promptly by first class mail. Send your name and address, pattern numbers and correct amount of check or money order (no stamps) to The Post-Crescent Craft Patterns, Elmhurst, Ill. 60126.

Your Problems

Experience Helps Children Understand

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Grandpa is 82 years old and very ill. He will probably not live more than a month. Our children love Grandpa and they keep asking if they can go to the nursing home to see him. We have told the children that Grandpa sleeps most of the time and he should not be disturbed. The truth is that he has lost so much weight we are afraid the children would be frightened if they saw him. Also, Grandpa is sedated most of the time and has not recognized any of us for several days.

The question has now arisen as to whether the children should be permitted to go to the funeral. (It will be a closed casket.) They are 9, 6, and 5. Please advise us. — Heavy Hearted Mother.

Dear Mother: If the children express the wish to go to Grandpa's funeral, allow them to do so. If they don't want to go, don't try to persuade them. The decision should be theirs.

A funeral can help children accept the finality of death. It affords them an opportunity to share a family experience and to see that adults, too, express honest emotions without shame. It can also serve to reduce anxiety and fear which children often associate with the unknown.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am seriously considering a man who tells me, "When we marry, I will not go out of my way to form any personal relationships with other women, but if I should run into the opportunity, I would not pass it up."

What kind of a man is this? He says he would not blame me if I did the same. I need your opinion in a hurry. — Washington, D. C.

Dear Wash: I admire the guy's honesty. He is telling you in advance he doesn't give a damn about faithfulness — his or yours.

This would be no marriage, dearie. It would be a legal merger with pre-sanctioned, two-way cheating privileges. His statement proves something I've been saying for a long time. Every woman can get married — if she sets her standards low enough.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married for 21 years, we have no children, and I've worked as a secretary for an executive of one of the Big Three auto manufacturers in Detroit.

I am entitled to four weeks vacation this summer but my husband feels that he can take only one full week because of the nature of his work. I am toying with the idea that perhaps I ought to go to Europe with the Girls' Club. (It's for employees only.) The trip would be three weeks. I have never been to Europe and I'd love to go. But I keep wondering if it would be right to leave my husband. I am beset by fears. How will he manage? I do everything for him — clothes, cooking, etc. What would you do? — D. Troit.

Dear D.: I'd go. But then I'm not you — and your husband isn't Jules. In a decision such as this, one must consider personalities, temperaments, degree of dependency — as well as what arrangements could be made in your absence. Does he have a mother in town? Or a sister: Could he hatch with another husband whose wife is on the trip? Noodle it out, honey—and send me a postcard.

Do you feel ill at ease... out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Smart Shopper's Recipe for Week

Mealtime elegance is easy with evaporated milk.

This convenient dairy product actually is whole milk with over half the water removed. It has been homogenized, fortified with vitamin D, sealed in cans, and sterilized.

This milk needs no refrigeration until after the can is opened. It's ideal for camping and other outdoor trips.

Open the can and use as is, mix with an equal amount of water, vegetable juice, fruit juice, meat or fish broth and use in any recipe calling for milk.

Evaporated milk holds crumbs to foods beautifully. Just roll the food in the crumb or flour mixture, shake lightly, dip in evaporated milk and roll in crumbs again.

Quick saucery is easy with evaporated milk. As it pours from the can, add cheese and heat for a cheese sauce for casseroles, vegetables, and dips. Add chocolate and heat for a smooth dessert sauce. Blend with fruit juice such as orange or lemon for a salad dressing.

Evaporated milk is used in today's Smart Shopper recipe for Cornmeal Pancakes. Both the canned milk and the cornmeal are plentiful foods.

CORNMEAL PANCAKES
2 cups cornmeal
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 3/4 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 cup evaporated milk
1 egg

Sift or mix together in large bowl the cornmeal, baking powder, baking soda, salt and sugar. Add butter or margarine and boiling water. Beat until well blended.

Stir the vinegar into the evaporated milk; add to cornmeal mixture, stirring. Beat egg and add to batter; blend. Pour batter on hot and lightly greased pan or griddle. Cook until pancake top covered with bubbles; turn and brown on other side. Serve with syrup, jelly, jam, butter or honey.

Ace Billy Eisenberg was South and passed to six spades. Pre-emptive auctions always make for difficult decisions and Billy though he had a chance to beat the slam. If hearts had not divided evenly, he would have. On the other hand, if either opponent were void in diamonds, he wouldn't have. And so on...

The the other table, South had no difficulty in choosing the sacrifice of seven diamonds. Possible. The Aces bid more confidently — maybe South thought The Aces always made the slams they bid. In any event, 11 IMPs went to the opponents.

Summer Cover Ups Making the Scene

All the great looks of summer sportswear turn up in beach cover-ups.

Pants invade the beach in every shape, form, and fashion — ranging from wide-legged, pull-ons to laced-front sailor pants in striped cotton knit.

Even overalls make the scene, according to the National Cotton Council. They're decked out in cool cotton madras with feminine touches of embroidery.

Top-rated cover with teen-agers is the super-long T-shirt of striped cotton jersey. It's slashed on both sides for a show of legs.

Erma Survives Terrible 2s

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I have written two books, play a ukelele and can drive a car without looking at my feet, but do you know what singular thing impresses women when I am in a group? The fact that I have survived a two-year-old.

In all modesty, I must admit I am not the only woman in North America to endure the terrible 2s, but I am possibly one of the few who can talk about it without knotting my handkerchief.

One of the reasons I think I was so successful is that I adjusted earlier than most women. My kids were born being two years old. They seemed to have a full set of teeth for biting, an emergency supply of saliva for spitting and little legs that ran the mile under three minutes.

One evening, I said to my husband, "I cannot go on like this, I am exhausted."

He said, "You're just a little tired."

"When you fall asleep on an obscene phone call," I said, "You're exhausted."

"Do you mean to tell me a bald baby a yard high with a smile that could defrost Mount Everest is getting you down?"

"You don't understand," I said. "Between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., he put the cat in the dryer, got his arm caught in a rake, put his training pants in the oven, ate a guppy, pulled over the flour canister, sat on my geraniums, put his orthopedic shoes in the bathtub, dropped a television knob down the register, tore up my card for jury duty and talked 15 minutes without operator assistance to a housewife in New Mexico."

"Have you tried naps?" asked my husband.

"I've tried, but he keeps crawling in my playpen and slobbering. 'Mama, play...'" Then, my husband remembered an old Burt Lancaster movie in which he was a prisoner of war. In order to maintain his sanity, he disciplined his mind to concentrate on things other than the pain he was enduring.

The next time my two-year-old oiled his tricycle with my $5.50 jar of cream that was to bring everlasting youth to my chins, I smiled and recited the Declaration of Independence.

When I looked up from bridge one night and saw him sitting on the steps with nothing on except a 45 rpm phonograph record slung over one ear, I recited the alphabet backwards.

Come to think of it, I was the only woman on our block who could recite all the vice presidents from John Adams to Alben Barkley.

Warm-Up Lunch For Rainy Days

Rainy days call for special cheer-up, warm-up foods for disappointed youngsters who can't get outdoors to play.

Make the occasion sparkle with a food surprise such as canned Macaroni-Os with cheese sauce already in it.

RAINY-DAY LUNCHEON

- 1/2 pound ground beef oil or fat
- 1/2 cup sliced celery
- 1/4 cup chopped onions
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 1 can Macaroni-Os with cheese sauce (15 ounce can)

Brown ground beef in oil in saucepan; add sliced celery, chopped onion and minced garlic; stir to blend and cook until celery is tender. Pour off any fat; add canned macaroni with cheese sauce. Heat, stirring occasionally. Serve hot with whole wheat toast points, cornmeal muffins or hot biscuits. Recipe makes two to three servings.

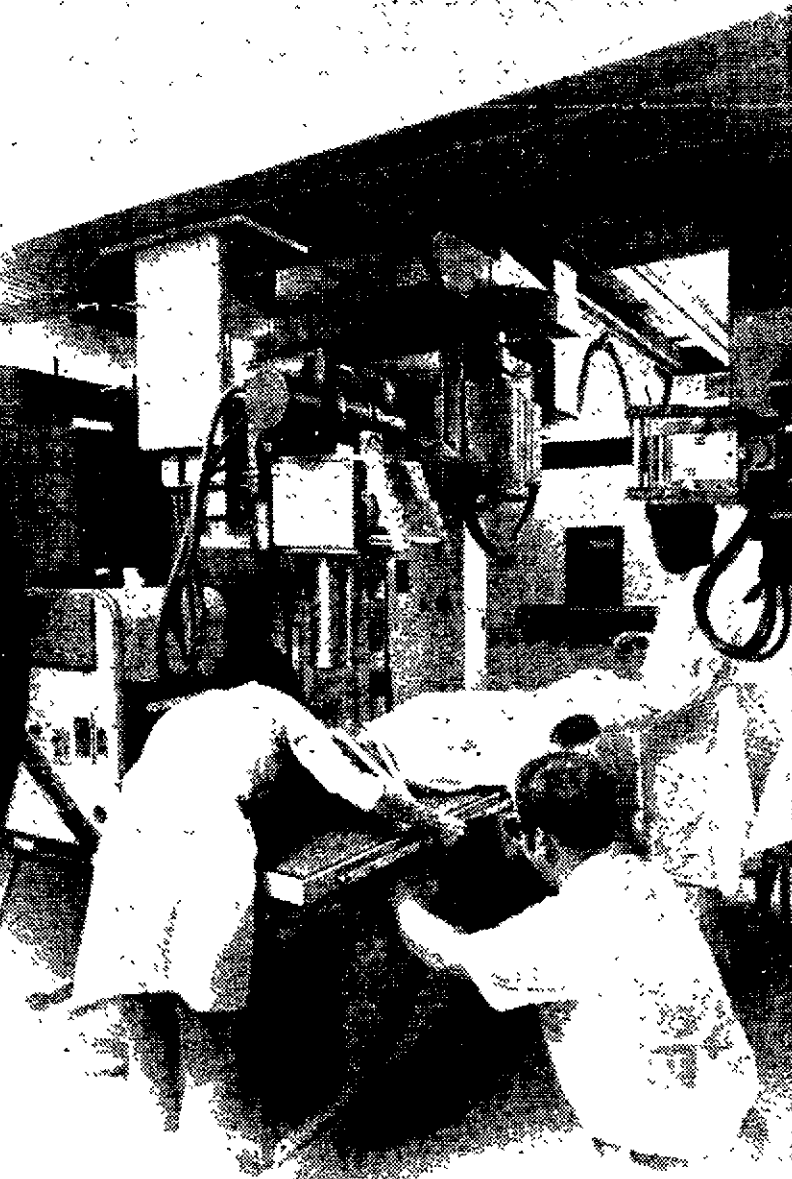

Breakfast Prunes

Cooked prunes are an excellent breakfast fruit, rich in vitamins and minerals. The fruit need not be served the same old way all the time. A thin slice of lemon or orange or a stick of cinnamon provides interesting and good-tasting flavor variety.

5-17-3
If you are including cherry tomatoes in a tossed salad use only ones small enough to be eaten in one bite.

Here's all it takes to explore the rivers of the mind.

It takes a roomful of over $225,000 worth of advanced x-ray and electronic equipment... one neuro-radiologist who uses x-ray to explore blood vessels involving the brain... one resident physician in radiology... one registered nurse specially trained in blood-vessel catheterization... one anesthesiologist... two x-ray technicians.

That's all it takes — plus time and an infinite degree of special care — to make the pictures that tell the inside story. Pictures that locate the trouble, so other medical specialists can apply their skills to resolving it.

The development of techniques for x-ray diagnosis of blood vessel problems has had far-reaching consequences in the battle against human ills. Advances in neuro-surgery, dramatic progress in vascular replacements and other procedures — all have called upon this ability to explore the rivers of the mind and body.

Obviously, the cost of such progress runs high. Good reason for having the health-care protection that goes farthest to cover your needs. Blue Cross and Surgical Care Blue Shield — with benefits that expand to meet the costs of care. Daily service benefits — not limited dollars-per-day benefits — coverage that provides for the care you require.

50-Serving Cake for Silver Anniversary

It's a record-breaking year for silver anniversaries! An estimated 1,750,000 women — the ones who helped make 1946 a banner year for marriages — will celebrate the landmark in 1971. The silver anniversary celebration easily can be the prettiest party of the year. According to a recent survey, the girls who married around World War II love parties — 64 per cent of the survey group say they entertain more now than they did when they married. They also report they missed out on silver gifts, for only 25 per cent received gifts of sterling silver flatware at the time of their marriage. Many of these women have started or added to their sets since then, but an anniversary gift of sterling from husband, children, or friends probably will make them as happy as brides. Extra place pieces such as teaspoons or dessert forks, or serving pieces such as the pie or cake server, lemon fork or bon bon spoon should receive an enthusiastic welcome from the woman who typically does more entertaining "now that the children are grown." When it comes to the actual observance of the anniversary, it was found that 75 per cent of the survey group celebrate it with a party. The open house type or buffet are most popular in the Fox and Wolf Valley areas. So to suit the occasion here is a recipe for a beautiful three-layer cake which makes 50 servings, each serving 1 x 3 inches.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY CAKE
3 pkgs white cake mix
6 egg whites

4 cups water
24 ounces apricot preserves
1/2 cup flaked coconut
1/2 cup finely chopped nuts
3 cans (16 1/2 ounces each) vanilla butter-cream frosting
Grated rind of 2 lemons
Silver dragées
Foil daffodils, stems and leaves

Combine cake mix, egg whites and water according to package directions. Pour batter into three greased and floured 15 x 10 x 1-inch baking pans. Bake in a 350-degree oven 30 minutes, or until cake is firm to the touch. Cool layers on a rack.

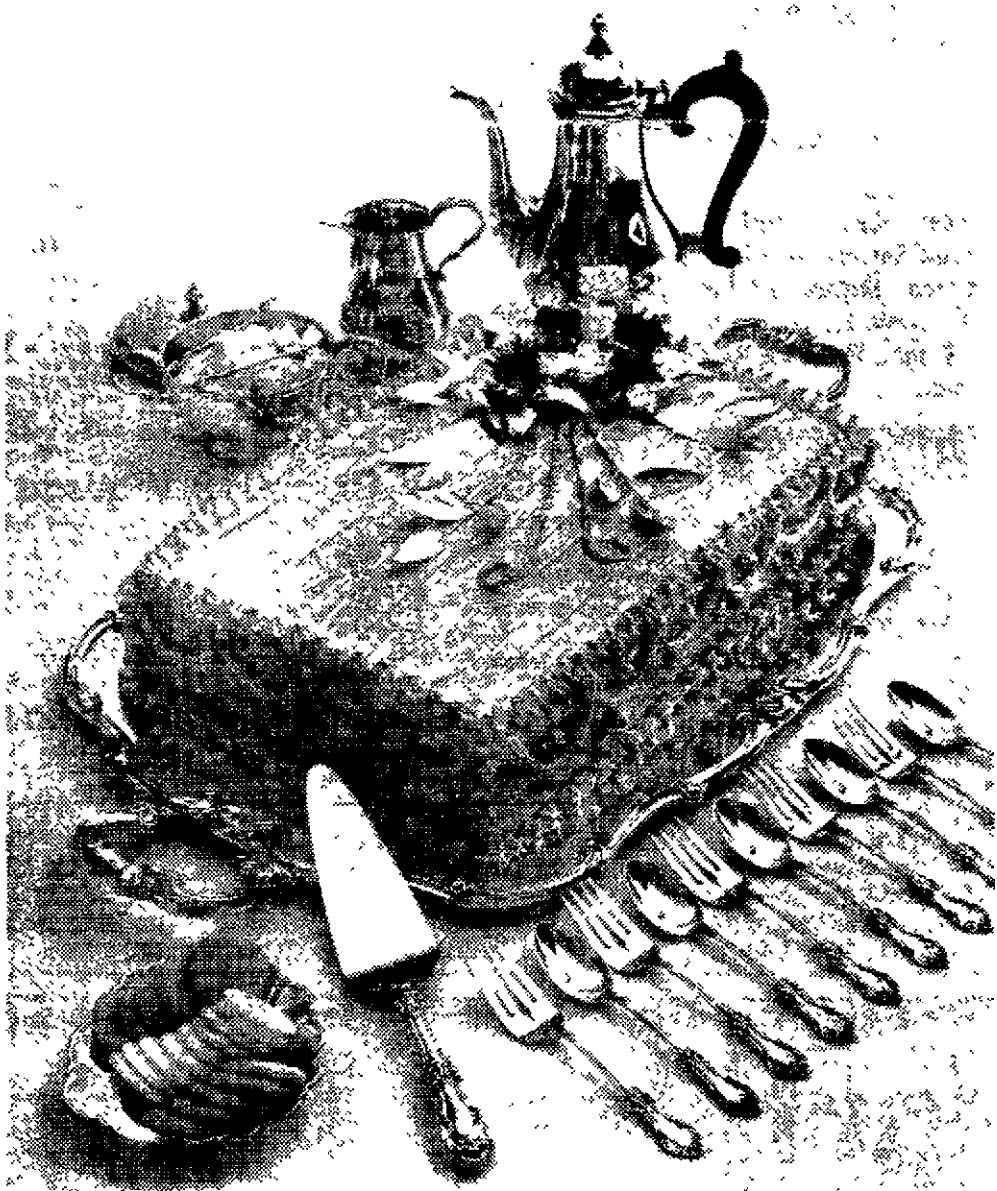

Place one layer on serving platter. Mix preserves, coconut and nuts; spread half on cake. Continue layering, ending with plain layer. Combine frosting and lemon rind and spread on sides and top of cake, reserving three-fourths of frosting for decoration.

Decorate as desired, using a pastry bag with a star tip. Place a silver dragee on each rosette of frosting.

FOIL DECORATION: Make flower stems by crimping 2-inch-wide strips of foil tightly into ropes. With scissors, cut leaves from a double thickness of heavy duty foil. Make the center cup of a daffodil from a double thickness of 2 x 4-inch foil; shape long edge around end of index finger, crimping to fit; snip opposite edge with scissors to make fringed flower cup. On one long edge of a double thickness of 3 x 5-inch foil, cut five 1 1/2-inch-deep pointed scallops to resemble a king's crown. Wrap opposite, uncut edge of foil around base of flower cup; crimp at base and fan scalloped petals out around flower.

Some Double Trade on 2 Cycle Jacobsen Mowers

THE 4-BLADE ROTARY SUCCESS STORY

Safer, smoother cutting is provided by four blades rather than the conventional bar type cutting mowers. The replaceable double-edge blades have twice the cutting life since they are reversible and when it does become necessary to replace them, a whole new set can be installed easily and at less cost than that of resharpening an old style bar blade. This 4-blade cutting unit is also safer ... because any blade will turn away on impact with a solid object which helps to eliminate the chances of flying debris ... cuts finer clippings which puts more grass into the bag.

Stottlemire Stops Brews

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Move over Whitey Ford, Vic Raschi, Eddie Lopat, Allie Reynolds, Spud Chandler, Lefty Gomez, Red Ruffing, Waite Hoyt and Jack Chesbro—here comes Mel Stottlemire.

Stottlemire hurled the New York Yankees to a three-hit 3-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Wednesday night to continue his march toward the top of the all-time Yankee pitching list.

The victory was Stottlemire's 115th lifetime, just five short of ninth-place Raschi. Ford heads the list with 236 career victories as a Yankee.

Not Conscious

The complete game—his fourth of the season and 103rd lifetime—ties him for 11th place on the all-time Yankee list with Russ Ford. Ruffing leads the list with 274.

The shutout tied Stottlemire with Raschi on the Yankee list. "I'm not really conscious of the records," Stottlemire said. "Maybe at the end of the year when I read it in the press book, but not now."

New York Manager Ralph Houk called the victory a "typical Stottlemire game."

"I didn't even see it," Houk joked. "When he pitches, I just go in to the clubhouse and wait."

Becoming serious, Houk said Stottlemire "and Whitey Ford are the two best pitchers I've ever managed."

"They are both great competitors," he said. "This guy (Stottlemire) is one of the best. Juan Marichal (of the San Francisco Giants), Stottlemire and Tom Seaver (New York Mets)—they're just outstanding pitchers."

"If Stottlemire isn't a complete pitcher, I'd like to see one who is," Houk said. "He never misses a turn. He's a good hitter, good bunter and good runner."

Stottlemire proved Houk was correct by singling home the first Yankee run in the third inning. The right-hander, for the game, lined to the shortstop, singled to right and walked twice, scoring the final New York run.

The only Brewer to give him trouble was outfielder John Briggs, who singled his first two times up. Catcher Elie Rodriguez singled to left in the second inning for the only other Milwaukee safety.

"I'm a low-ball pitcher and he's a low-ball hitter," Stottlemire said of Briggs. "It's my strength against him."

Loser Skip Lockwood gave up two runs—both coming in the fourth—in his eight-inning stretch. He was touched for eight hits and kept himself in hot water by walking six Yankees in the first four innings.

FVL Seeks Track Crown in Final MPC Appearance

Fox Valley Lutheran will be gunning to make its final Midwest Prep Conference appearance a memorable one Saturday when it seeks a sweep of track honors in the conference meet at Milwaukee University School.

The unbeaten Foxes, coached by Bill Lueders, have won the Lutheran Relays and Midwest Prep Relays already. Lueders had hoped to win at least one major title this spring—something FVL had been unable to do previously.

Not that FVL is getting greedy, but there would be no more fitting manner to close out its MPC season and association than sweeping all track honors.

Last season, FVL swept the pole vault with Dennis Kasten, clearing 10-6 to pace the way. However, this season Tim Woldt, second in 1970—has vaulted 11-6 and Shawn Woods, a non-participant a year ago, is the other likely vaulter. Kasten, or Steve Buser will be the third man.

Glen Hinneenthal is given a good shot at winning the high jump competition. His seasonal best is six feet, one-quarter inch. Gary Radtke and Ed Rohloff are given good chances of winning and placing in the 880. Kasten is a favorite in the two mile and Mark Umnus is a 220 darkhorse.

"A couple of others who could come close," according to Lueders. They are Jim Mattek, 440; Bill Lecker, long jump; Umnus, 100; Baboucar Nyang, 100, and Romberg in the hurdles.

Hurdles Favorite

Wisconsin Lutheran's Dave Norumensen is the hurdles favorite with Romberg rated second. "University School has several good hurdlers—particularly in the lows," Lueders added.

Lueders hopes his team can defeat Wisconsin Lutheran in the mile relay after placing second in two consecutive meetings.

Motta Agrees To New Pact

Coach of Bulls Ends Speculation Of Going to ABA

CHICAGO (AP) — Now that Dick Motta has decided to accept what the Chicago Bulls say is the finest contract in professional sports, the National Basketball Association's coach of the year is "looking forward to the day when I can prove I'm worth it."

Motta, 39, ended speculation Wednesday that he would accept a lucrative offer from the Dallas team offered Motta $60,000 a year in salary but the terms of his agreement with the Bulls were not disclosed.

Motta said, "Money was not the deciding factor... Texas made one offer and the Bulls made one offer and that was it. I didn't want to play games."

He added, "I don't think my job in Chicago is done."

Motta was hired out of Weber State College three years ago to coach the Bulls and he led them this year to a second place finish in the Midwest Division with a 51-31 record, third best in the NBA.

Cautious, Optimistic

Lueders is what might be called cautiously optimistic about his team's chances.

He sees Wisconsin Lutheran—defending champion—and University School as the main challengers. Last season, Lueders was hoping to be fighting for third place and the Foxes came through by placing there.

Dave Romberg is defending shot put and discus champion. Lueders feels Romberg, who won last year with a 46-10 heave, should repeat in the shot. The husky FVL senior has a 51-9 1/4 best this year.

Either Romberg, or Bill Plamann can win the discus event on "his" day. Lueders said. Wisconsin Lutheran's Richard Seeger is the pre-meet favorite, however.

Lueders can see his tough weightman duo placing first and second in their specialties.

Donohue Tops 180 Mark

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A timer was in use in drivers' tests for rookies. One of them, Donohue, who unofficially turned the first 180-mile-an-hour lap at the 61-year-old Indianapolis Motor Speedway Wednesday.

The one-word description came from Peter DePaolo, 1925 winner of the Speedway's annual 500-mile race at an average speed of 101.13.

"This is just fantastic," said DePaolo, 73, of Dearborn, Mich., who made his annual appearance to watch practice for the million-dollar race May 29.

Speedway veterans didn't know whether to give most of the credit to the 34-year-old pulled into the pits from the graduate engineer driver, the master minding of car owner Roger Penske, or to the new Mark 16 McLaren-Offenhauser.

Electric Eye

Donohue, running at an undesirable low 54 degrees in a land design the record-smash-caught at 50 seconds flat for Mark 16.

He declined to pick any one of the feature of the design that made ferent locations made it 50.12 or the car 5 to 15 m.p.h. faster than anything else at the 179.6.

The Speedway's electric eye said there were several innovations, including radiator placement that moved the center of gravity, airfoils on the nose and over the engine, "terrific new tires," and some engineering on the four-cylinder Offy engine.

Whatever it was, it sent former winners A. J. Foyt Jr., Al Unser and Mario Andretti back to their garages for some "catch up" tinkering with their cars.

Talley Drives in Tie-Breaker

Foxes Rally in Eighth, Post 5-3 Victory Over Danville

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Appleton's heavy artillery remained quiet through most of the game, but was fired off in time to give the Northern Division-leading Foxes a 5-3 verdict over their Southern Division counterparts, Danville, Wednesday night at chilly Goodland Field.

The victors, (8-4), assured themselves of retaining their division advantage, while the Warriors slipped to a first-place insurance run.

The Foxes struck early and Danville's Chuck Loseth was against Loseth. Isakson walked unimpressive, however, effective, during his stint of nearly eight full innings. Loseth's darting fast ball was an elusive target but he walked six over the seven and two-thirds innings to remain in trouble.

with the tying run. Fleet-footed Joe Talley, a port side swinger, went to the plate with a single and double in three appearances. Talley last time to give the Northern Division a vicious liner to the almost identical spot of Johnson's hit and streaked around the bases as the relay throw came in to Danville shortstop Whitey Adams, attempting to nail the sliding Talley at third.

They tossed the ball into the Appleton dugout and Talley tallied the Warriors slipped to a first-place insurance run.

Joe Talley

Neenah Bowler Hits 913

Jim Drechsel Comes Within One Pin of Class B Lead

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"When I had that first strike in the 19th frame," Jim Drechsel recalled, "I knew I was close... darn close."

in another session of The Post-Crescent Bowl-O-Rama Tournament at 41 Bowl Wednesday night.

Drechsel, a superintendent at the Atlas Tag Co., encountered the baby split (the 3-10) on his second roll in the 10th frame of this final game but then cleaned it up.

Another crucial situation. Jim pointed out, had developed in the ninth frame when after firing two strikes in a row, Drechsel had a "good hit" only to leave the No. 8 pin standing.

Although naturally disappointed that his series wasn't quite good enough for the No. 1 spot, the father of three said, smiling, "I've got nothing to complain about."

The best performances were turned in by Neenah's Al Kuckbecker, who spilled an 867 good for a 17th place tie. Kuckbecker rapped successive lines of 202, 204, 161 and 212 for 779 scratch and added 88 pins handicap.

Shirley Seehauer's 800 (692 scratch) headed the Class A women kегlers but her total was good for no better than a tie for 43rd place. She rolled scratch games of 201, 144, 167 and 150.

Squad prize winners for high games with handicap included Neenah's Sandra Arndt, 222-37 259, and Kaukauna's Joe Gertz, 225-23-248 on the first shift and Neenah's Lou Peterson, 215-28-243, and Berlin's Bill Nowicki, 208-26-234 on the second shift.

Mets, Bucs Beaten

Phils Lose Dispute; Cub Power Erupts To Complete Chore

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The burning question in Philadelphia is whether the Phillies were done in Wednesday night by three pitches that hit Chicago Cubs bats or one pitch that didn't.

There may be different opinions on the matter. As far as the Cubs are concerned, home runs by Ron Santo, Johnny Callison and Billy Williams that accounted for six runs in a 9-4 triumph were the keys to victory.

The Phillies, however, contend that a ruling by umpire Tom Gorman that Jim Hickman checked his swing and did not foul tip a 3-2 pitch was as crucial as any of the homers.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston edged the New York Mets 5-4. San Diego nipped Pittsburgh 2-1. San Francisco trounced Cincinnati 7-2 and Los Angeles blanked Atlanta 5-0. St. Louis and Montreal were stunted out.

The Cubs and Phillies were scoreless in the fourth inning when the fireworks—physical and verbal—started. Williams singled with one out and then came the disputed fourth ball to Hickman. Joe Pepitone popped up for what the Phils thought should have been the third out, but Santo belted a three-run homer and Callison followed with a solo shot.

In the seventh, Glenn Beckert doubled three runs across and Williams homered. Santo, Callison and Williams also homered the previous night. Tony Taylor and Joe Lis connected for the Phils.

When Gorman called ball four on Hickman, with Williams running, catcher Mike Ryan exploded and he, pitcher Jim Bunning and manager Frank Lucchesi all screamed at the ump.

Foul Ticked

said Gorman as he waved Hickman to first base.

Houston unloaded on Mets ace Tom Seaver for four runs

A 157 average bowler in the Wednesday night Commercial League at Thunder Bowl and Saturday night Church Couples League at Muench's Recreation Center, Drechsel blasted scratch games of 198, 184, 195 and 204 for a 781 count. His handicap of 132 pins gave him the final tally of 913.

"I found all the alley's pretty consistent," he noted. It was the first appearance of Drechsel in the ninth annual Post-Crescent Tournament in three years.

While the 913 was generating most of the excitement for the evening, Linda Hansen, Combined Locks, claimed the women's spotlight by firing an 835 total, good for ninth position in Class B.

B-O-R Spots Still Available

Excluding tonight's action, openings are still available on eight of the nine dates remaining. The only closed shifts are the 7 p.m. of Wednesday, May 19; both the 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. shifts of Friday, May 21, and the 7 p.m. of Sunday, May 23.

Sunday, May 16
Monday, May 17

Bluejays' Gear Hurls 8-1 Win Over Kaukauna

MENASHA — Menasha High School avenged an earlier Fox Valley Association baseball defeat to Kaukauna (5-3) by beating the Ghosts, 8-1, here Wednesday.

West Edges Neenah Behind Mueller, Ties for Second

Appleton West (5-3) moved back into the Fox Valley Association title picture Wednesday by edging Neenah, 1-0, behind the strong pitching of southpaw Dwight Mueller in extra-innings.

Neenah (4-4), got only one hit off Mueller. The West hurler fanned 12 and issued only two walks in going the distance.

Glen Rodgers also went the route against Appleton yielding seven hits, walking five and striking out five.

West scored the only run of the contest in the bottom of the ninth as George Downey led off with a single, stole second, moved to third on a passed ball, and scored on Dale Monday's squeeze bunt.

Downey led the attack with a 2-for-3 day. Greg Miller collected a pair of singles for the winners.

Marion Stays Undefeated

Daley Pitches 2-Hit, 6-3 Win Over Bonduel

MARION — Mike Daley limited Bonduel to two hits as undefeated Marion dealt the Bears a 6-3 loss in a Central Wisconsin Conference game here Wednesday night.

Marion is 9-0 overall, and holds a 3-0 mark in the conference. Bonduel is 5-4 for the year and has a 3-1 record in conference play.

Pete Kristof's double in the first inning with the bases loaded plated three Marion runs.

The Mustangs added a lone marker in the third inning. Kristof was safe on an error, stole second, advanced to third on a base hit by Dave Buntrock, and scored on another error.

Bonduel tallied twice in the fourth. Jim Reinke reached first on an error and moved to second base on another error after apparently being caught in a run-down. Neil Boettcher then received a walk, and both runners were moved one base on a sacrifice by Dale Hein.

Reinke scored later on a passed ball after a third strike, and Neil Boettcher came home on a throwing error.

The Bears tallied another run in the fifth. Jeff Wnuk walked, moved to second on a passed ball, went to third on an infield out, and scored on a wild pitch.

Marion added two insurance runs in the sixth inning as Kent Brandenburg and Daley each received walks, and on Steve Neimuth's double.

Daley's no-hitter was spoiled in the seventh when Mike Boettcher and Dave Mueller each singled. Daley then struck out the side to end the game.

Losing pitcher Mike Boettcher struck out six and walked the same number. Daley fanned 14 and walked three.

Oshkosh Posts 7-4 Triumph Over Patriots

An Indian "rain dance" the night before possibly saved Oshkosh and cost Appleton East a comfortable lead in the Fox Valley Association's tangled baseball race.

The first-place Patriots, vanquished, 7-4, Wednesday in a complete replay of Tuesday's scheduled event, now own a 6-3 record, with Kaukauna and Appleton West one-half game back at 5-3.

Oshkosh (5-4) was trailing, 4-0, Tuesday when the rains fell and cancelled the game. East was unable to come back Wednesday in similar form, as Steve Tesch and Tim Fenn combined to hurl the Indians' victory.

The Indians plated three runs in the third as an outfield error opened the gates. The error, which would have made three outs, was followed by a volley of five hits.

Jeff Bergsbaken was ticketed with the loss, while Tesch claimed the win.

Craig Whitney singled, doubled and tripled to plate four runs to pace Oshkosh. Fenn slapped a pair of singles and a double to bring in two runs.

Lee Bauman, Dan Heinritz and Bob Pearson all collected two hits for the Patriots.

Thomas Re-Elected, Hammermill Picks Directors, Officers

Top officers and directors of the Hammermill Paper Co., Erie, Pa.-based parent firm of Thilmay Pulp and Paper Co., Kaukauna, were picked this week at the annual stockholders and board of directors meetings.

John H. DeVitt, board chairman was re-elected while Albert F. Duval was elected president and chief executive officer. The board also elected two new vice presidents and declared regular quarterly dividends on common and preferred stock.

J. T. Thomas, retired president of Thilmay, was re-elected a director.

Robert J. Kilgore was elected vice president, secretary and general counsel. William H. Straw was elected vice president and treasurer. All other officers were re-elected.

Directors re-elected were Ralph H. Demmler, Duval, John E. Franzen, Donald S. Leslie, Jr. and Thomas.

The stockholders also approved a proposed amendment to the Restated Articles of Incorporation to increase the number of shares of common stock of the company ($1.25 par value) authorized for issuance, from 8 million to 15 million shares. About 88 per cent of the company's stock was voted at the meeting.

DeVitt told stockholders that despite reduced operating levels prompted by low industry demand and a slow recovery in the national economy, Hammermill expected that the second 12-week period will show an improvement in operating earnings over the first 12-weeks.

Looking to the third quarter, DeVitt said that although demand and prices seem to be picking up for many of the company's product lines, start-up costs for the new $40 million pulp mill at Erie will affect third period earnings. He added that if the national economy becomes as vigorous as anticipated in the fourth quarter, Hammermill should experience a significant improvement in sales and earnings for that period.

Directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on Hammermill's common stock, payable June 15, 1971 to stockholders of record May 24, 1971. Also declared were regular quarterly dividends on the company's 4 1/4 per cent and 4 1/2 per cent cumulative preferred stock and second cumulative preferred stock series A (Convertible) payable, July 1, 1971 to stockholders of record June 10, 1971.

The Cornell plant, on the Chippewa River in western Wisconsin near Eau Claire, employs approximately 300 persons. The firm said it plans to assist, where possible, in the placement of employees in other jobs in Wisconsin.

Output of the Cornell mill is rated at 210 tons a day, using two papermaking machines and utilizing recycled fibers.

Martin said engineering steps had been undertaken to rebuild and expand the St. Regis mill in Milwaukee.

This project may require operation of the Cornell plant until June 30, 1972.

Martin said the company's decision to close down the Cornell mill was influenced by all of shrinking markets as newer mills became more competitive, location of the plant far from the source of raw materials, and the necessity for major overhaul or replacement of most of the equipment in the near future.

Output of the Cornell mill is rated at 210 tons a day, using two papermaking machines and utilizing recycled fibers.

Your Money's Worth Inquire About Lawyers Before You Need One

BY SYLVIA PORTER

How long has it been since you have had to use — and pay for — the services of a lawyer? If it hasn't been long, you won't be surprised to learn that a single hour of a lawyer's time today may cost from $20 to $50 and that many lawyers charge $100-up for one hour of work.

Nor will you be surprised to learn that a sticky divorce may cost $3,000 to $5,000 or more in legal fees for each spouse; that legal fees when you buy or sell a house may amount to 1 per cent of the price of the house; that representation in court may cost $250 to $300 a day; that the typical "contingency fee" (in which the lawyer collects only if he wins the case for his client) may run 20 to 40 per cent of the amount awarded by the court.

Yet, never has your need for services been as great as now — whether you are an individual wanting to draw up a contract or a will, a couple wanting to adopt a baby or get a divorce.

Let's say you have never before had any reason to consult a lawyer and you have no idea how to find one. Millions of you fit this description, so here goes with basic rules to guide you.

(1) Shop for a family lawyer before you need his services.

(2) Find out if there is a local Lawyer Referral Service which will advise you for a fee of only $5 to $10 whether your problem actually requires legal assistance, and if so, which local lawyer can handle it. The local bar association or the telephone yellow pages can direct you to such a service, now available in over 250 cities.

(3) Check your prospective lawyer's reputation for competence, good judgment and reliability with friends, other clients, bank officers, your labor union or fraternal club, real estate agents. Also check the Martin-Gale Hubbell Directory, which should be in your local library, and which lists and rates U.S. law firms.

(4) Find out which legal services and specialties are offered by the law firm as a whole — or if services you might need are not provided. Whether the firm has access to top outside specialists. For instance, among legal services a firm might offer are: drawing a will, planning and serving as executor of your estate; representing you in court if you're involved in a suit or an arrest; preparing a separation agreement or divorce; steering you to a competent insurance agent, tax advisor, realtor; drawing up and reviewing contracts of all kinds; dealing with zoning matters; resolving legal disputes with neighbors, landlord, creditors, etc.

(5) Be immediately suspicious of any lawyer who tries to lure you with the promise of an unusually fat court settlement, in, say, a negligence case or divorce.

(6) Concentrate instead on whether a prospective lawyer's key concern is in preventing costly legal confrontations and in making all reasonable efforts to keep you out of court.

(7) Most important, discuss with care the fees your family lawyer may charge for various services. Generally, these five factors will influence the charge: the difficulty of your job; the time invested in your case; the good the services have done you; office and other costs associated strictly with your case; your ability to pay. Despite these variables, at least ask in advance what basic hourly rate the lawyer charges and also the basic rate for each day spent in court on your behalf. At least get some estimates on costs of tackling your specific legal problems.

(8) And be sure you — and your spouse-like and trust the lawyer you finally choose to protect you and your family.

You will need a lawyer over the years — so go back to that first rule and choose him or her before the need and then use the other rules to help you choose him or her wisely. A good lawyer will more than make his fees in terms of the money he saves you and the costly, exhausting legal snarls he is able to prevent.

The Biggest Fear In Washington

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — No one talks about it, but one of the greatest fears concerning the attempt of the anti-Vietnam demonstrators to close down Washington last week was that the American taxpayer might have discovered that only half the people here were really needed to run the government.

I found this out when I rode downtown with my friend Phil Jaylan on that Monday morning when the protesters made their first attempt to keep government employees from getting to work.

Jaylan, who works in the Department of Bureaucratic Infinity, picked me up in his Volkswagen at 7 o'clock. I never saw him so nervous.

"Don't worry, Jaylan," I said, "there's not going to be any violence."

"I'm not worried about the violence," Jaylan said, perspiring. "I'm worried about my job."

"They won't fire you just because you're late one morning," I said.

"It isn't because I'm late. They may discover they don't need me."

"I don't understand," I said.

"Look," said Jaylan, "for 30 years the government's been expanding at a ferocious rate. New departments have come into being overnight, old departments have been beefed up for no reason. The government is so big that no one has any idea how many people it really needs to make it work any more."

"Everyone knows that, Jaylan," I said.

"But let's just suppose these crazy kids manage to shut down the bridges and roads from Maryland and Virginia. This would prevent 70 per cent of all government employees from getting to work."

"That would be a catastrophe," I said.

"But suppose it wasn't a catastrophe. Suppose the government discovered it only needed 30 per cent of its present work force."

"I never thought of that."

"This demonstration is being covered by all the media," Jaylan said. "In the event that the protesters succeed in their shutdown and the government still operates smoothly, the whole country will know by tonight how few people it really needs to take care of the nation's business."

"We can't let it happen," I said to Jaylan as we skirted around a trash can on two wheels."

"I have to beat Bradley to the office," he said.

"Why Bradley?"

"He sits next to me. If he gets to work and I don't, they'll discover he can do my job as well as his. If I get there and Bradley doesn't, I can prove they don't need Bradley."

"Gosh, Jaylan," I said, "that sounds like dog eat dog."

"It isn't just me. You see all those cars bumper to bumper out there? In every one of them is a Jaylan trying to beat a Bradley to work. These people are willing to take nails in their tires, dents in their fenders, tear gas in their eyes, anything, as long as no one finds out they are expendable."

A truck was stalled in the middle of the street and Jaylan and I lifted his Volkswagen over it and then we took off again. "Bradley will never be able to do that," Jaylan cackled, "not with his station wagon."

By driving mostly on the sidewalk through Georgetown, Jaylan made it to his office on time. That evening on the way home he revealed to me that not one person in the bureau was absent.

"As a matter of fact, there were several people on vacation and sick leave who came in to make sure their jobs won't be eliminated."

"It sure was close," Jaylan sighed. "If it hadn't been for the brilliant work of the police and military, the government might have had to cut its payroll in half."

22,000 Have Died as Talks Inch Along

SAIGON (AP) — More than 22,000 Americans have died in combat in the Indochina war since the Paris peace talks started exactly three years ago, a compilation of official U.S. casualty reports showed today.

The total included 34 deaths announced today by the U.S. Command in its casualty summary, for last week. It was the lowest weekly figure in three months.

This brought the three-year total to 22,170 as of midnight last Saturday, almost half of the 45,121 American battle deaths for the more than 10 years that the United States has been involved in the Vietnam conflict.

Since Saturday midnight, there have been other U.S. servicemen killed, but these figures will not be announced until next week's casualty summary.

Saigon Troops

A compilation of South Vietnamese casualties on the third anniversary of the Paris talks showed 51,722 Saigon troops have been killed since the talks began May 13, 1968.

In the same period, the allies claim they killed 394,659 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops.

The U.S. Command's report of 34 deaths last week was the lowest since the first Americans died in action.

The command said 221 Americans were wounded last week, a sharp drop from the 592 reported wounded in the previous week and the lowest figure in three weeks.

Only four deaths were listed last week from non-hostile causes such as accidents and illness, an unusually small number compared with the recent average of about 20 such deaths each week.

Latest Figures

The latest figures brought the U.S. totals for the war—from Jan. 1, 1961—to 45,121 combat deaths, 299,102 wounded in action and 9,510 deaths from non-hostile causes.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 360 government troops killed and 862 wounded last week, both well below the 492 killed and 1,102 wounded a week earlier.

Supplies Go To Survivors Of Earthquake

BURDUR, Turkey (AP) — Army helicopters carried medicine and supplies to stricken mountain villages in southwest Turkey today as operations continued to relieve the victims of Wednesday's earthquake.

Turkish Prime Minister Nihat Erim flew from Ankara to this town of 30,000 to inspect the relief work.

"May Allah spare you from more pain," Erim told a grim crowd here. "We will spare no effort to rebuild."

The quake destroyed or damaged three-quarters of the buildings in Burdur, officials said, and wrecked dozens of surrounding villages.

The official death toll stood at 54 today but officials fear it may rise when contact is made with remote villages.

Officials said the timing of the quake was a major factor in the low death toll. Most of the villagers were working in their fields and children were in school, the solidest building in town, Wednesday morning.

Burdur is optimum growing country about 225 miles south-west of Ankara.

The quake was the sixth in a series that have rocked Turkey's Anatolian fault, killing nearly 4,000 persons since 1966.

Wednesday's quake registered eight on the Richter scale, according to the Kandvli Observatory in Istanbul, making it a major earthquake.

Postal Changes Met Skeptically

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional overseers of the Postal Service say they will wait for results before passing judgment on the sweeping reorganization of the mails announced by Postmaster Gen. Winton M. Blount.

The Postal Service chief said Wednesday the current 15 regional mail centers will be cut to five, which will have more centralized authority, and there will be a manpower reduction.

Though his announcement said nothing of how many employees would be affected, congressional sources said 3,500 older, white collar workers would be encouraged to retire.

Blount did say none of 640,000 postal workers protected by unions would be affected. That means the local mailman won't change.

Time Will Tell

"Only time will tell if the system will improve," said Rep. David Henderson, D-N.C., the No. 2 Democrat on the House Postal Committee. "It would seem to be in keeping with what Gen. Blount has said he had in mind... a real centralization of authority."

Henderson expressed reservations about cutting the regional centers but he said he would not challenge the change "even though there is already a great deal of dissatisfaction in the Congress with the deterioration in service."

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., chairman of the Senate Postal Committee, said he would lodge no protest against the reorganization, but take a look at how it works.

McGee said he was concerned with the "abolition of the white collar workers and what he will do with the expertise that's left."

Blount's plan calls for new regional centers in New York, Philadelphia, Memphis, Chicago and San Francisco. Centers in Boston, Washington D.C., Atlanta, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Wichita, Minneapolis, Dallas, Denver and Seattle would be eliminated.

One congressional source predicted the effect of the changes would be to encourage sales campaign to massive greater use of postal services as a step in reversing a 20-year record of deficits.

The postal reorganization bill signed by President Nixon last Fall provides a subsidy until 1984.

Future it plans to apply the same principles to other advertised commodities, apparently meaning the ruling will be extended to such businesses as department, drug and hardware stores.

"What we're looking for," said Robert Pitofsky, director of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection, "is a store that systematically advertises a product and then consistently doesn't have the product on the shelves at the advertised price."

Year One-Third Over Economy Still Sags

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a third of the year gone, the Nixon administration is still looking for solid evidence of a broad economic upsurge that will drive down unemployment and slow inflation further.

Despite President Nixon's pledge that 1971 will be a good year, unemployment has hovered around the 6 per cent rate all year. Last month, the jobless rate edged up to 6.1 per cent.

Although consumer price increases slowed perceptibly in the first few months of the year, wholesale prices, which usually presage future cost-of-living increases, accelerated in April.

And, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday, the rise in national personal income slackened in April, supplying new evidence the economic pace is failing to match the administration's forecasts.

April Rise

The personal income advance was $4.5 billion, down from the $6.2 billion increase recorded in February. The April rise was about the average monthly gain in 1970, a year in which the economy went through what Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns has called a recession.

The evidence suggests, according to some economic analysts, that the expansion Nixon is seeking is not moving fast enough to reduce unemployment and inflation to acceptable levels.

The President has pledged to cut unemployment to 4.5 per cent and inflation, now running above 5 per cent, to 3 per cent by the middle of 1972.

Money Policies

To achieve these goals, he has promised to stimulate the economy with stepped-up federal spending and easier money policies. If these fail to work, Nixon has said he will consider tax cuts later in the year to provide further stimulation.

There was an economic rebound from January through March but it can be traced to a catchup in business activity after settlement of the General Motors strike.

The administration also said it signaled the beginning of a wider economic expansion. It pointed to increases in March retail sales and housing starts as evidence the consumer is starting to spend more.

But so far, the expansion has not been strong enough to make a dent in the unemployment rate, which Nixon's economic officials say should be falling below 5 per cent by the end of the year.

Nixon has called for a 9 per cent increase in economic output this year, projecting that Gross National Product, output of the nation's goods and services, will reach $1.065 trillion this year.

The GNP advanced by $28.5 billion during the first quarter but the strong gain still fell short of the administration's forecasts. Almost two-thirds of the boost was traced to the resumption of G.M. automobile production.

It will be July before the next GNP report is announced and conclusive figures available on the pace of the recovery.

But the latest figures indicate that the recovery is not as broad-based as the administration would like. In the latest reading, for example, business investment in plant and equipment was lackluster.

But the administration says it will be patient, confident that the economic pace will quicken. "Steady as you go," Budget Director George P. Shultz said recently in describing the administration's attitude on the recovery.

Administration economists also caution against drawing any conclusions about the economy on the basis of one month of statistics.

Turnabout Gives SST 2nd Chance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American supersonic transport, the world's most debated aircraft, has been led through a legislative backdoor into a renewed fight for life. The stakes now may not be just two prototypes but a whole fleet of production-line SSTs.

Turning a congressional death warrant inside out, House backers of federal subsidies for the faster-than-sound, passenger plane engineered a 201-197 loophole victory Wednesday hailed by President Nixon and denounced by critics as a "travesty of the legislative process."

Spokesmen for the aerospace contractors that have built and fought for the SST project were quick to say any renewal of the work would be expensive, that all contracts would have to be renegotiated and that in their view the goal would have to be changed from mere prototype development to actual SST commercial production.

Proxmire Strategy

"Our strategy will be to try and beat it, beat it up and down," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. He declared to newsmen he will use any tactic under the Senate rules to kill the project—not ruling out talking it to death.

He said the original objections still stand: the SST is too costly, something that should be left to private industry is not practical and threatens the environment.

"Minds have been changed in the last two months," said Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who has fought to keep alive the SST, which was being built in his state.

His homestate colleague, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, also a Democrat, said these factors were the mind changers: A strong reaction across the nation to rising unemployment, the current dollar crisis overseas and the continued effort of the British-French builders of the Concorde SST.

Thought Dead

The issue, thought dead earlier in the year following defeats on both congressional chambers, was raised again when House SST backers, in an amendment to a supplemental appropriations bill, rewrote a section providing $85 million to terminate SST contracts. Their new language earmarked the money to restart the program.

House's 215-204 anti-SST vote The decision, reversing the eight weeks ago, tossed the controversy back to the Senate, giving another turn to a Capitol Hill saga in which the SST already has had far many more perils than the fabled Pauline.

The Senate last March nailed down the earlier House decision in a 51-46 vote.

The initial reaction from all sides was that the new Senate vote whenever it can be arranged, will be far closer, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called it nip and tuck.

Jackson said it was fifty-fifty. Proxmire said "Frankly, we don't know if we have the votes or not."

Prime Contractors

Spokesmen for the Boeing Corp. and General Electric, the two prime SST contractors under now canceled contracts, said the whole situation will have to be rethought.

"Any proposal to go forward on an SST program would involve very substantial financial commitments beyond $85 million," a Boeing spokesman said.

A new start and a new contract should consider not only completion of two prototypes "but the construction of production aircraft as well," the spokesman said.

Such a step would change the rules of the SST game as it has been played in Congress up to now.

Under the old contracts the government was committed only through the development of the prototypes. Nixon administration officials did all they could to assure congressmen that no federal funds would ever be spent on actual commercial production.

Proxmire called Wednesday for renewed help from the national coalition of environmental and conservation groups that conducted the successful lobbying effort widely credited in earlier curbing the project.

Proxmire told a newsmen his real concern at the moment is what will happen to the SST if a Senate "no" vote sends it to a conference with the House.

The Senate last year had voted against continuing federal financing of SST development, while the House approved it. A conference committee compromised the differences by extending the SST program.

Proxmire Lambasts Loan to Lockheed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "A Lockheed bankruptcy proposal to grant $250 million in federal loan guarantees to the tottering Lockheed Aircraft Corp.," is bad economics, bad public policy and bad news for the American taxpayer," says Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Proxmire, one of the most powerful foes of government spending policies, commented in advance of introduction today of an administration bill providing the guarantees. He challenged the White House to produce a "single reputable economist in support of the proposed bailout."

"The argument that it is necessary to bail out Lockheed in order to prevent widespread unemployment and general economic collapse has no merit," the senator added in a prepared statement.

Uphill Fight

Without such a provision, said Cranston, it will be an uphill fight to get Congress to approve help for the California-based company which says 25,000 people will be out of work if it goes bankrupt.

Cranston said his soundings indicate much congressional opposition to the guarantees is based on anger over a management responsible for millions in losses and cost overruns on defense contracts.

Despite these losses, Lockheed's current crisis was brought on by collapse of Rolls Royce Ltd., British maker of engines for the L-1011 Tristar commercial jet airliner.

Lockheed Board Chairman Daniel Houghton, a principal target of Cranston's amendment, has just signed a new contract with Rolls conditioned on congressional approval of guarantees.

Sale Price Items

Have Advertised Goods, Stores Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has ruled a grocery store advertising sales must have enough goods on hand to meet reasonable demand at the special price.

A grocery chain may not use such disclaimers as "not all items available in all stores" to get around the ruling, the FTC held Wednesday. And providing "rain checks" for later use at sale prices will not meet the test.

The regulation is effective July 12.

The commission said in the future it plans to apply the same principles to other advertised commodities, apparently meaning the ruling will be extended to such businesses as department, drug and hardware stores.

"What we're looking for," said Robert Pitofsky, director of the FTC Bureau of Consumer Protection, "is a store that systematically advertises a product and then consistently doesn't have the product on the shelves at the advertised price."

Failure to abide by the new rule could be punishable as an unfair trade practice and subject the offender to civil penalties.

The ruling arises from a 1967-68 study of 137 stores operated by 10 grocery chains in San Francisco and Washington.

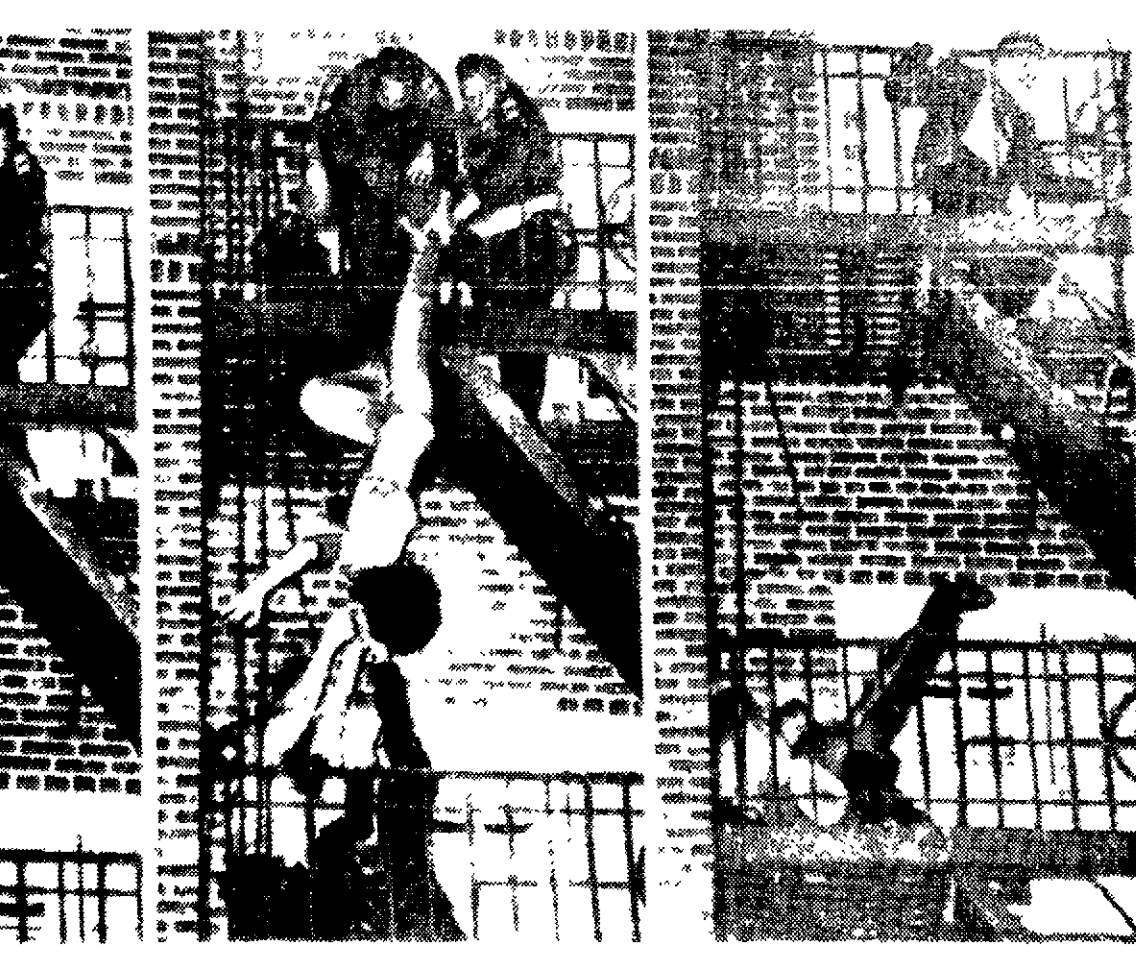

Eleven per cent of advertised items were not available in most stores, the study showed, and only eight of the 137 outlets checked had every advertised item.

Fewer advertised products were available in low-income areas than in wealthier sections. And nearly 10 per cent of the specials were marked at prices above those in the sales advertisements.

The FTC said the new rule excuses a retailer if demand for advertise specials exceeds reasonable expectations, or if he can prove the stock was unavailable through no fault of his own.

The commission noted 282,300 U.S. retail grocery stores sold $76 billion worth of food in 1968.

"There exists a broad public interest in the advertising and marketing practices of the retail food industry, particularly when that industry has been the subject of numerous allegations of unfair and anticompetitive practices," the FTC said.

County to Focus on Solution to Planning

An entire day — next Tuesday — will be reserved by the Outagamie County Board Policy and Finance Committee to discuss the future of its regional planning participation and its membership in Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

The day was agreed to Wednesday after committee members discussed the proposal of the mid-Fox Valley chambers of commerce that the county and other units of government drop out of Northeastern and form a single, metropolitan region planning agency.

Supv. G. Allen Bubolz, Appleton, called the proposal a "rather drastic and emotional approach to something that can be handled with more finesse." He urged staying with Northeastern and the metropolitan agency, the Fox Valley Council of Governments. Bubolz, whose father, Gordon, is chairman of Northeastern, said he was trying to be objective but felt that the county shouldn't throw away a decade of planning and plans by Northeastern.

Supv. Edward Spierings, Little Chute, defended the chamber proposal, saying the joint subcommittee of the chambers of Neenah - Menasha, Appleton, Heart of the Valley and Oshkosh had put much study into it. Spierings is village president and a member of COG's governing body.

County Board Chairman Russell DeLaHunt, Kaukauna, who had said earlier this year that there is strong county feelings to get out of Northeastern, said withdrawal can not be sold alone. He noted that a positive concept, such as what to do for future planning, has the only chance on the board floor.

The committee, which discussed planning for about two hours, agrees that Charles Hervey, executive director of Northeastern, and Franklin Nehs, Appleton chamber president and spokesman for the subcommittee, should be invited to speak on planning proposals Tuesday. Nehs may select an alternate, it was agreed.

Also, County Corp. Counsel William Schuh will be invited to discuss legal aspects of the planning questions.

Committeemen agreed that even a full day might not bring answers but they apparently want to come up with a recommendation in a short time.

Bubolz suggested that the chambers' proposal wasn't a valid reflection of all chamber members' feelings. He said that it was composed at a "private caucus of people who have special axes to grind," noting he believed that Eugene Franchett, COG executive director, drew up the proposal for the chambers.

Spierings told Bubolz that the chamber membership instructed the subcommittee to make the study and come up with a recommendation.

Bubolz lauded Northeastern's work and suggested that it could remain intact, with near-

Bond Set for Man Held on Kidnapping

CHILTON — Bond was set at $5,500 Wednesday morning for Charles O'Mary, 23, Omro, who appeared before Calumet County Judge D. H. Seborra on charges of kidnapping and taking an auto without the owner's consent.

O'Mary was returned late Monday from Oklahoma by county authorities. He was declared indigent at the hearing and will appear with a court-appointed attorney for trial on Monday.

He was charged with taking credit on a road way, 561 square yards, with one way traffic, out of the county against her $4,900, time four weeks; nine-inch concrete roadway, 561 square yards, no traffic, $5,300.

Waupaca District to Set Up Advisory Panels

WAUPACA — A meeting to set up five Citizen's Advisory Committees to compile facts and make recommendations and plans for the Waupaca Unified School District has been set for June 14.

This will be the second step in an effort to involve parents and residents throughout the district in updating the educational program and facilities.

The initial step is currently underway. The second of five informational meetings will be held at 8 p.m. today in Riverside Elementary School for the parents and residents of the area where children are attending Riverside and classes in the First Methodist Church.

The format of each of these meetings is an introduction to problems confronting the school district, to present some possible solutions, to seek suggestions and acquire the names of those willing to serve on the proposed advisory committees. One of the five committees, the board of education hopes it will be broadly representative of the entire community, reflecting all viewpoints and all interests.

"Each of these committees is to operate independently and is in no way to act as a rubber stamp of board and administrative proposals," Supt. Len Brittelli said at the first informational meeting held last Monday and attended by 50 citizens and parents.

The superintendent also said that there would be a cooperative working relationship between the board of education and community volunteers, that a member of the board would be a resource person on each committee and that the board would be open and receptive to comments and suggestions from the civic, business, educational, service and religious groups in the community. The suggested guidelines for the five committees which the board of education has proposed and for which it is seeking volunteers, are these:

Steering Committee: to coordinate the efforts of all committees, obtain written progress reports of meetings held, assist in obtaining all relevant facts and resources, assemble the final reports of all committees, disseminate them to the community and board of education and recommend a course of action when all of the findings are filed.

Finance Committee: to study assessed valuation trends, 1961-1971; bonding capacity, current indebtedness, bond rating, amount of capital outlay levy available for debt service, to estimate the tax impact of a proposed building program.

Equalized tax rates and effect on home owners: compare per pupil costs with other Wisconsin School districts, total school costs with other districts; and determine methods of raising revenues for a campaign should such action take place.

School Building and Construction Committee: to survey local facilities, talk with local staff and students, evaluate superintendent's findings and recommendations; consider the increase in construction costs for last five years and anticipated, estimated increase for the next five years; study new trends in school construction; suggest methods of keeping school construction costs at a minimum; study present school site; visit schools constructed during the last five years and suggest periods two through seven, he said. Replacements are being sought for Mrs. James King, biology and algebra teacher, who has resigned effective the end of this school year, and T. D. Ellis, physics and algebra teacher, who is retiring. Both teach at senior high school.

Teacher Aide Program Feira outlined a training program here for teacher aides which will be sponsored by the Fox Valley Technical Institute for eight weeks starting on June 14. He also indicated that Vocational, Technical and Adult Education-District 12 was interested in sponsoring additional summer school courses in metals, auto mechanics, creative writing, typing and others, and would rent local school facilities to carry out the program.

The Clintonville Savings and Loan Association was authorized as a depository for short-term investment purposes.

Supt. V. J. Wadleigh reported that a request had been made to Lee Wait, chairman of the Town of Larrabee, to clean the roadside on Green Tree Road and widen the roadway from Harriet Street to the Dellwood parking lot. To encourage early action on this project, the clerk was instructed to write the chairman indicating that the board does not anticipate annexing this property to the City of Clintonville.

Permission will be secured from Jack Kaphingst and Lyle Becker for inspection of the buildings on their property. The board will advertise for bids for the sale of the houses on these two lots. The bids are due June 15.

Clintonville to Hire More Teachers

CLINTONVILLE — The board of education voted 6-1 Tuesday to hire an additional teacher for business education and extra personnel for two additional hours each of math and home economics.

The action came after Peter Feira, high school guidance counselor, told the board increased enrollments in the departments next year would necessitate hiring more faculty members.

Feira said there will be 640 students in the high school next year, an increase of 34 over this year. This year, the building is being used to maximum in periods two through seven, he said.

Replacements are being sought for Mrs. James King, biology and algebra teacher, who has resigned effective the end of this school year, and T. D. Ellis, physics and algebra teacher, who is retiring. Both teach at senior high school.

Waupaca Street Project City Traffic to be Rerouted

WAUPACA — Traffic on state highways 22, 49 and 54 will be diverted from the State, Badger and School Street intersection beginning Monday and will move along Lake Street and South Main.

It will take two weeks to lay nine inches of concrete at the intersection and, hopefully, the normal route of traffic will be opened by Memorial Day weekend.

The City Council met at a special meeting late Wednesday afternoon to act on the recommendations of the board of public works to resurface the intersection.

Ald. Julius Johnson (4th), chairman of the board of public works, told aldermen that a meeting was held on Tuesday with Waupaca County Highway Commissioner Fred Grunwald, district highway engineer Donald Cronkrite, City Engineer Iver Oerter and the board of public works to consider the alternatives.

Repeatedly Torn Up

During the past 10 months the State - Badger - School streets intersection has been repeatedly torn up to install a new 16-inch water main, telephone and gas lines in construction of the State Street Bridge.

"We can do a patchwork job at the intersection or lay a nine-inch concrete roadway and cover the whole thing," Johnson said.

Figures submitted by Oerter from Sullivan and Sons, Wisconsin Rapids, subcontractor on the bridge, include: nine-inch concrete roadway, 561 square yards, with one way traffic, $4,900, time four weeks; nine-inch concrete roadway, 561 square yards, no traffic, $5,300.

time two weeks; and blacktop surface, with the city adjusting the six manhole levels, $4,300.

The council voted 9-0 to lay the nine-inch concrete and detour traffic from the intersection for two weeks.

Project Funding

Money for the project will come 30 per cent from the water utility and the balance from the street maintenance fund. Oerter explained that the intersection is an area where the city is being paid maintenance from county and state highway funds.

A four-man city crew will take one full day to sign the detour according to strict State Highway regulations, Oerter told the council.

That portion of State Street including the bridge and its approaches will be blacktopped by Waupaca County Highway crews within the next two weeks.

Ald. Thomas Taber (1st), reported that Dave Shambau, Mary parish, to replace George Ecker Jr., Mrs. Matt Moehn Furniture Store, 502 E. Fulton, Jr., and Mrs. Donald Ertl whose terms expire.

Red Cross Again Planning Annual Oconomowoc Session

CLINTONVILLE — Silver Lake at Oconomowoc will be the site of the aquatic and small craft school run by the Pere Marquette Red Cross Division June 6-11 this year.

The five day school, staffed by Red Cross volunteers and professionals, offers persons over 17 an early summer chance to receive training to help them in their efforts to secure jobs at pools, beaches or camps.

James Lindow, safety programs chairman for the Clintonville Chapter of the American Red Cross, indicated that courses are being offered to prepare persons to instruct water safety, canoeing, sailing and first aid. The first three courses require students to have senior lifesaving certificates, while age is the only requisite for the first aid training.

This is the 12th year for the school. Since its beginning, 1,145 persons have been trained to teach other people safety in and on the water and first aid.

Applications for the school can be obtained at 58 Pearl St., Clintonville, or they will be mailed upon request. The five-day, work-packed sessions are held on the waterfront of Indian Mound Boy Scout reservation. Cost for any of the courses is $35, which covers lodging, meals, texts and all materials required. There is no charge for the instruction.

Waupaca School Board Reports No Classes May 31

WAUPACA — The board of the calendar and that state law governing fruitfully at this point. Negotiators for the Waupaca Educational Association have been asked to discuss salaries on Memorial Day, May 31, when Anderson, member of the board, it determined that this school teacher negotiating team, that at the next negotiations meeting Friday. There will be a joint press release after the session.

Prin. William Williams reported that 94 children have registered to date for kindergarten next fall. Last year at this time 127 children had registered.

The board relaxed the rule that a child must be five years old before Aug. 15 to enter kindergarten. The decision was that a four year-old may begin classes if a psychologist says he is ready and if he will be five before Dec. 1. The action came at the request of William Ellingsworth.

Consideration also was given to the policy of hiring teachers on the strict basis of qualifications. Some members felt that preference should be given to local teachers. However, Supt. Len Brittelli said teachers had been screened on that policy and the he thought it should continue.

Contracts were approved for five new teachers for 1971-72. These are: Alden Hoefer, instrumental music; Miss Linda Kassera, girls' physical education; Miss Jacquelyn Priem, home economics; Miss Frances Bauer, home economics and Miss Elizabeth Wunderlich, third grade.

The board accepted the resignation of William Shay, instrumental music teacher, to be effective at the school year's end June 8. For the remaining two months of Shay's contract, the board has hired Sam Winch to direct the summer band program.

Post-Crescent Given Summons In Suit by Hazen

A summons in a civil suit against The Post-Crescent by Howard H. Hazen, 368 McArthur St., Sun Prairie, was served on the newspaper this week. The summons was not accompanied by the complaint.

Two weeks ago The Post-Crescent was served with a legal notice by Hazen requesting retraction of certain statements made in news stories extending back to May, 1969, and it is presumed that the suit involves those articles.

The articles dealt with complaints made to Atty. Gen. Robert Warren by seven Democratic state representatives regarding Hazen's lobbying activities in connection with a bill then before the legislature to require the licensing of electricians. Two of the assemblymen, Rep. William Rogers of Kaukauna and Rep. Laurence Day of Eland, were served with similar summonses last week.

The board took formal action to approve the list of seniors for the 1971 commencement exercises. In other action the board approved courses in music, art, next fall. The program, which reading, math, and auto mechanics, for the summer session.

Rescue Squad Gets Donations From 2 Towns

CLINTONVILLE — The volunteer rescue squad has received $300 from the Town of Larrabee and $200 from the Town of Matteson.

The electors in both towns voted to contribute money to the rescue squad at their annual town meetings last month, in appreciation for the services received from the squad during the year.

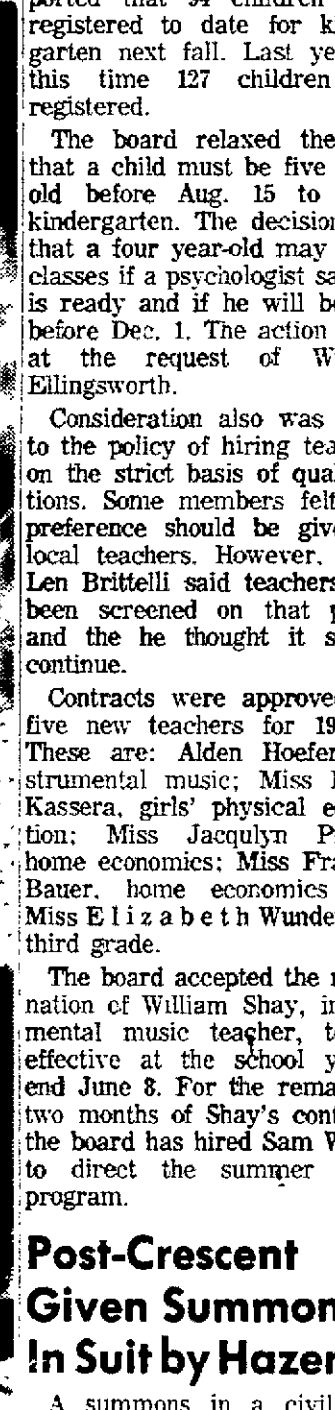

Many of the runs made by the volunteer emergency unit are to locations outside of the city limits. Of the nearly 50 calls received so far this year, only 20 were in the city.

Penalty Bill Aimed at Coin Box Thefts

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Legislation which would make it a crime to jimmy coin boxes with burglary tools cleared the Wisconsin Senate Tuesday and advanced to the Assembly.

The bill provides for a $1,000 fine and 10 years imprisonment.

Under the present law, a person caught breaking into coin-operated machines—such as parking meters and coin-operated phonographs—can be charged only with destruction of property, according to Sen. Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh.

The measure was sent to the Senate on a voice vote.

Before taking the action, the Senate debated for more than an hour on a bill to extend state aid to county colleges through the 1972-73 school year.

The measure, which carries an $824,488 price tag, was referred to the Joint Finance Committee for study.

Enrollment of Freshmen Dips At UW-Madison

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin reported Monday reported freshman enrollment for 1971-72 is lagging compared with a year ago.

Applications on the 33,000-student Madison campus are down 19 per cent from last year. Similar declines were noted in the number of permits to register and in confirmed enrollments.

Officials earlier projected a freshman class enrollment of 4,190. The figure last year was 4,287.

Sharpest decline was noted in the number of out-of-state high school graduates seeking admission.

University spokesmen said factors contributing to fewer freshman prospects include economic conditions and easy availability of dormitory living space which might discourage early enrolling to insure living quarters.

Clintonville Gets Third Delegate to Badger Boys State

CLINTONVILLE — The senior high school's quota of delegates to Badger Boys State has been increased by one this year, Principal Burr E. Tolles has been told by the department headquarters of the American Legion in Milwaukee.

Three boys will be sent to Ripon College this year for the first time. The third delegate will be James Boehlke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Boehlke, 15 19th St.

The other two delegates, previously announced, are Mark Bessette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bessette, 208 N. Clinton Ave., and Jeff Danke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Danke, route 1, Shiocton.

Badger Boys State will be held from June 12-19.

Parks Panel Gets VTE-12 Land Bid

The request from Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District 12 (VTE-12) for first refusal options on two parcels of county-owned land was referred by the Outagamie County board to its public property and parks committee Tuesday night.

The district had requested a three-year first refusal option on 40.71 acres of land on the east side of Bluemound Road, across from the new Fox Valley Technical Institute (FVTI) site, and a one-year first refusal option on 103 acres of land west of U.S. 41 upon which the district's outright purchase option expires Friday. Under a first refusal option, the district would have to be given the first opportunity to buy the land if the county decided to sell it.

In other action, the board referred to its policy and finance committee, to report back June 8, a request from four businesses to purchase land from the county to extend Brewster Street through to Bluemound Road.

The businesses front on W. Wisconsin Avenue and are now "landlocked" as a result of the U. S. 10 reconstruction program. Brewster Street is one block north of Wisconsin Avenue but deadends just west of Lyndale Road.

Their proposal is to buy the land from the county and put in the road so they will have access to the businesses from Brewster Street. The action also would add about 100 feet to depth of the business properties.

A request from the Town of Grand Chute for an easement across county property for a sanitary sewer line was referred to the zoning committee for study, with the committee being given authority to sign the easement if it finds no objections to its provisions.

Supv. John Schreiter requested the corporation counsel determine whether a contract between the county and Karras Vending for the concessions at Plamann Park lake is valid.

The contract, which originally had been signed a year ago, was renewed this spring. Schreiter contended the public property and parks committee did not have the authority to sign the contract without taking new bids.

Supv. Nick Karras, a partner in Karras Vending, is chairman of the public property and parks committee but did not vote on the contract and had unsuccessfully sought that it be handled by another committee.

Karras Vending holds the vending contract for other county buildings, but those contracts were bid before Karras was elected to the county board.

The county board policy and finance committee this morning voted to send the contract renewal question to the board for June action, per the board ordinance on contracts. Committeemen agreed that such contracts should be referred from the committee of jurisdiction to the board.

Karras told the committee that he wanted this handled properly, or his firm would want nothing to do with the service to Plamann. He criticized the method used by Schreiter of making public issue out of something that wasn't an intended wrongdoing.

The committee also voted to extend Karras' current contract so there would be continued service at Plamann to the time the county board acts on the renewal.

Education Group Elects Officers At Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — Officers for the 1971-72 school year were elected recently by the Clintonville Education Association (CEA) at its annual spring dinner.

They are Mrs. Richard Bains, president; Gregg Bradley, vice president; Mrs. Roy Elandt, secretary; and Lowell Easley, treasurer. Robert McMahon is the outgoing president.

Special tribute was paid to T. D. Ellis, who is retiring. He received a hand gun as a gift from the CEA.

Ellis has been teaching physics and algebra at Clintonville for 33 years. In the spring of 1967, Ellis, whose coaching career spanned 35 years, announced his retirement as Clintonville senior high school football coach. Chet Jurkovic succeeded him.

Before coming to Clintonville, Ellis was at Spring Green for nine years and at Oregon for one year.

Might Decide This Year

Byrnes Ponders Retirement

WASHINGTON — Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay, confirmed today that he is weighing the question of whether to seek re-election to his 8th District congressional seat next year. But he added that it is a question "anybody in public office always faces" before an election.

"I always think in terms of should I or shouldn't I," he explained. He said he expects to have made up his mind by the end of this year or "the very early part" of next year.

"I also recognize that should I make a decision not to run, the district and the party and everybody else is entitled to know in time to make any plans they have to," he said.

Congressional elections are held in November of even-numbered years, but if Byrnes were to decide to drop out, the sooner he announced his decision the more time the Republican Party would have to choose a nominee to succeed him.

The fact that Byrnes is thinking about retirement at the end of his 14th term which he won last fall was published in The Milwaukee Journal Wednesday.

He was quoted as saying, "I'm losing some sleep over my decision. I've been here a long time, and I have to face the fact that I have only a few productive years left. I don't think congressmen should stay in office until they die."

Nearing 58, Byrnes is scarcely a senior citizen by congressional standards. A few of his colleagues top the 80-year mark, and many are in their 70s.

But he was said to be considering work in private industry, to build up retirement resources. As a congressman he makes $42,500 a year, and would receive a pension if he left office, though he said he hasn't calculated how much.

He said he hasn't had any offers of private employment recently, or specific plans. A legislator of Byrnes' stature — top-ranking republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, where federal tax laws are born — should be able to find a job in industry with little difficulty, and at higher pay than that of a congressman.

His committee is known as one of the busiest in Washington, and the Journal story quoted him as referring to his current "hellish workload."

He said today his only quarrel with the report was with its emphasis. "Hell, some days I feel like quitting immediately. But then things get better," he laughed.

Westbrook Steele Dies; IPC Founder

Westbrook Steele, president emeritus and one of the founders of The Institute of Paper Chemistry, died Tuesday at his home in Ormond Beach, Fla. He was 82.

Steele came to Appleton in 1929 as executive secretary of Lawrence College and later that year was appointed executive secretary of the newly founded institute. He was elected president of the institute in 1950 and served in that position until his retirement in 1955.

In addition to playing a leading role in the founding of the institute, Steele was credited with guiding its development as a graduate school and research center with ties to the paper industry throughout the world.

During his 26 years of association, the institute grew from merely an experiment with a staff of three and a few rooms in Lawrence's Alexander gymnasium to a cluster of buildings valued at more than $3 million and a staff of more than 250.

One of the paper industry's highest awards is named for Steele. Established in 1941, the Westbrook Steele gold medal is awarded annually to the candidate for the degree of doctor of philosophy who submits the outstanding thesis for that year.

Before coming to Lawrence and the institute, Steele had participated in the reorganization of some 70 educational institutions as general manager of the National System company which directed the reorganization of schools and colleges.

He also served as vice president of Western Theological Seminary, vice president of Centenary College, consultant to the College of Puget Sound, and assistant to the president of Bradley Polytechnic.

He received an honorary doctor of laws degree from Centenary College in 1938.

Steele served in World War I with the 38th Air Squadron of the U.S. Army Air Corps, and during World War II he was a member of the advisory board of the research and development branch, military planning division, office of the quarter-master general.

executive officer of the Combined Production and Resources Board joint committee on pulp and paper.

He had served as consultant to several groups interested in programs for cooperation between educational institutions and industry. In 1940 plans he developed led to the establishment of the Institute of Gas Technology, which later became a part of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Funeral services for Steele will be held Friday at St. James Episcopal Church in Ormond Beach. A memorial fund is being established with the American Heart Association or any of its chapters.
